Those in search of modern fancies in gemmed ornaments, something distinctive or remarkable for individual touches of artistic dealing and out of the convention—every-day type, will derive considerable interest from an inspection of our stock, and that interest will help to reveal the fact that we still maintain our reputation for progressiveness in the selection of the most charming and graceful novelties. An inspection will also disclose the reality that our prices compare most favourably with London Cash Prices and in many cases—chiefly ornaments set with coloured gems—prices are lower, while the handiwork as a whole will expose a standard impossible to criticise for daintiness and quality.

In ORNAMENTAL WATCHES we have a bright, novel and pleasing collection for choice. Every watch is fitted with a high-grade lever movement, is sturdily cased and guaranteed. Our collection, therefore, is of a totally distinct class to the feather-weight, or paper-thick class commonly known in the "cheap" trade as "Display Goods."

DAILY WEATHER REPORT.

FOR THE 13th JULY, 1914.

Summary of observations recorded at 8 hours on Monday, the 13th July, 1914, giving data for the preceding 24 hours.

The Punjab.—Local rain has fallen in the north and the east Punjab; Rawalpindi has had 2.66in. and Ambala 0.18in. Skies are moderately to heavily clouded. Humidity is normal or in excess. Day temperature is in defect in the submontane districts.

The United Provinces.—Rainfall has been nearly general in the extreme southern districts; Jhansi has had 0.51in. and Allahabad 1.86in. Skies are heavily clouded in the area of rainfall and lightly to moderately clouded elsewhere. Temperature is in excess at Mainpuri, Agra and Jhansi.

Sind and Rajputana.—Rainfall has been nearly general in east Rajputana; Jaipur has had 1.90in., Ajmer 0.36in. and Kotah 1.00in. Skies are moderately to heavily clouded. Humidity is in excess in the area of rainfall. Temperature is in defect at Bikaner.

Gujarat, Kathiawar and Central India West.—Rainfall has been nearly general in Central India West and fairly general in Kathiawar; Rajkot has had 0.24in., Veraval 1.06in., Bhavnagar-Para 0.64in., Neemuch 1.33in. and Indore 0.77in. Skies are heavily clouded. Day temperature is in defect in the southern half of the division.

The Central Provinces.—Rainfall has been nearly general in the northern half of the division; Jubbulpore has had 0.72in., Saugor 1.78in., Hoshangabad 5.37in. and Khandwa 0.27in. Skies are moderately to heavily clouded. Day temperature is in defect.

The Konkan.—Rainfall has been nearly general; Bombay has had 0.19in., Ratnagiri 0.32in., Mormugao 0.71in. and Karwar 1.15in. Skies are moderately to heavily clouded.

The Bombay Deccan and Hyderabad.—Belgaum records 0.13in. of rain. Skies are lightly to moderately clouded. Day temperature is in excess in the south Bombay Deccan but in defect in north Hyderabad and at Malegaon.

General Remarks.—The depression has moved in a north-westerly direction and is central today near Jhansi. It has determined nearly general and moderate to fairly heavy rain in the northern half of the Central Provinces, the extreme southern districts of the United Provinces and in east Rajputana. It may move further in a nearly northerly direction. Rainfall has been nearly general on the west coast of the Peninsula, fairly general in Kathiawar and local in the north and the east Punjab, while in Gujarat, the Deccan and the southern half of the Central Provinces it has been insignificant. There has been some increase in the rainfall in Malabar and the south Konkan.

Nearly general rain is likely on the west coast of the Peninsula; fairly general rain in the United Provinces and east Rajputana; local rain in the north and the east Punjab, Central India West and the northern half of the Central Provinces, some showers in Gujarat and Kathiawar.

STANDARD BAROMETER READING.

The following information is published in order that vessels in the Bombay Harbour say, by comparison with a standard instrument, ascertain the errors of their barometers:—

The reading of the Standard Barometer at the Colaba Observatory corrected for index error and reduced to 80 deg. F., and to the level of the tide, at 8-45 a.m., Standard Time on the 13th July was 29.531 inches. For temperature corrections applicable to mercurial barometers of ships the reading of the ship's barometer has to be increased or decreased by .013 inch. for every 5 degrees according as the temperature of the attached thermometer is respectively below or above 80 deg. F. In case of the aneroid no temperature correction is needed. But for comparison at 80 F. all aneroid readings should be increased by .138 inch. For correcting the ship's barometer either mercurial or aneroid for the height of the barometer cistern above the tide level in the steam at 8-45 a.m., Standard Time, the ship's barometer reading should be increased by .010 inch. for every 10 feet of the height to make it comparable with the observatory barometer reading given above.

ALL-INDIA WEATHER.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

SIMLA, July 13.

The depression from the Bay is now near Jhansi and is giving moderate to heavy rain. It is likely to move into Rajputana to-day. The monsoon is weak in the Peninsula. The temperature is low in the Punjab and the Central Provinces, but high in the west of the United Provinces.

Rainfall has been nearly general in Burma, Bengal, Bihar, East Rajputana, Central India, west of the Central Provinces and the West Coast of the Peninsula; local in Assam, Orissa, the United Provinces, East and North Punjab and Mysore. A few falls have also occurred in Chota Nagpur, Kashmir, the North-West Frontier Provinces, Gujarat, east of the Central Provinces, the Bombay Deccan and South-East Madras.

Principal amounts:—Tavoy four inches; Moulmein seven; Toungoo two; Myitkyina one and a half; Silchar one; Shillong four; Cherrapunji fourteen; Cox's Bazar, Barisal, Bogra, Darjeeling three; Chittagong five; Narayanganj and Behrampore one; Dinapore two; Purnea, Naya Dumka one and a half; Allahabad two; Mussoorree, Rawalpindi, Murree three; Parachinar and Kotah one; Raipur two; Mount Abu one and a half; Veraval one; Neemuch one and a half; Nowgong and Seoni one; Hoshangabad and Pachmarhi five; Saugor and Mangalore two.

Forecast:—Increase of rain in Central India West and South Rajputana and decrease in the Punjab.

Indian Ocean Report:—Conditions are nearly normal.

HOW TO SUCCEED AT THE BAR.

AUTHORSHIP AS ADVERTISING.

In a lecture on "The Discipline of the Bar" to barristers and students of the Inns of Court, at the Old Hall, Lincoln's Inn, Dr. Blake Odgers, K.C., said that knowledge of the law alone did not make a barrister a competent defender of the rights of his client. He was better fitted for the work if he had spent some time in a barrister's chambers as a pupil, where, besides doing the "paper work," and accompanying his chief to Court to see "how it was done," he might occasionally get a chance of holding the chiefs papers himself.

The young barrister must not adopt any indirect methods of getting work; he must wait. He would not know why work came to him or why it left him. One way of advertising, which was honourable, was to write a book on some branch of law. Circuits and sessions were part of the organization of the Bar which was devised to reduce competition among barristers. At most sessions all briefs, whether for the prosecution or defence, were confined to the Sessions Bar.

The lecturer referred especially to the duties which a barrister owes to the Court and to other barristers. When a young barrister expressed surprise at the ruling of the Judge and was severely criticized for doing so, his leader apologized for him with the observation, "when my junior is as old as I am he will never be surprised at anything your Lordship says or does." (Laughter.) Then, too, they must be courteous to witnesses. A barrister who had been brow-beating a witness went so far as to ask, "And, Sir, didn't your father do the same thing on a previous occasion?" "I don't know," was the reply; "he's over there, you had better ask him," and the witness pointed to the jury, of which his father was a member. (Laughter.) "A few barristers still go in for getting applause from the gallery. Don't do that," added Dr. Odgers, who finally asked his audience to remember the "rule of the three ups—stand up, speak up, and shut up."

FILING OF GROUNDLESS CIVIL SUITS.

A TYPICAL CASE FROM BENGAL.

A case of some interest has been recently decided in the Calcutta High Court arising out of the notorious practice of filing entirely groundless civil suits in Bengal Courts against residents of the United Provinces. A resident of the Unao district, a landholder named Pandit Jai Kishan Tiwari, received a letter in December 1912, from Rassik Lall Malik, an attorney of the Calcutta High Court claiming Rs. 130 on the ground that he had shortly before taken some jewellery from a shop on approval and pawned it elsewhere. Pundit Jai Kishan had not even been to Calcutta for years. He consulted a local pleader who wrote letter to the attorney denying the facts and expressing the hope that he would withdraw his clam. Receiving no reply he eventually placed his difficulties before the District Magistrate saying that he suspected some enemies in his own village of causing the letter to be written. As they had successfully concealed their identity behind the attorney, it was impossible to take action against them, and the District Magistrate having satisfied himself that this was a mere attempt at blackmail, issued a warrant against the attorney for attempted cheating and extortion. The attorney, who was of course able to furnish the required bail without difficulty, appeared in the Magistrate's Court and was discharged in consideration of the fact that he had already been put to some ignominy and expense and that he promised to find the man who had suggested the issue of the letter. The matter was then put into the hands of the Criminal Investigation Department, but as the attorney was found to be unable to identify his client the proceedings proved abortive. The attorney then sued Jai Kishan Tiwari for Rs. 10,000 as damages for illegal arrest and malicious prosecution in relation to the case in which he had been discharged. As he brought this suit in Calcutta he was enabled to do so at very small expense to himself, while over and above the ordinary cost of the case the defendant would have to make several journeys to and from Calcutta in the course of the proceedings. On hearing this the former District Magistrate of Unao who had been concerned wrote the plaintiff a letter which was afterwards produced in Court, pointing out that apart from illegality and malice, the defendant was in no case responsible for his arrest as he had not moved him (the District Magistrate) to issue the warrant, nor was he instructing the prosecution, and suggesting that he should withdraw from the case; otherwise the writer of the letter would go down to Calcutta to give evidence personally. He also got Government to take up the defence. It is understood that by this time the incorporated Law Society, which regarded the issue of a warrant against anyone of its members in the light of a slur upon the profession as a whole, had taken up the matter. No reply was sent to the Magistrate's letter and the plaintiff having on the strength of it opposed the issue of a commission to him, he was obliged to go down to Calcutta, where Mr. Eardley Norton was engaged to cross-examine him, as reported in our columns of the 10th June. The result was that the suit was dismissed by Mr. Justice Chaudhuri who tried the case, each party paying his own costs:—"The Pioneer."

BOMBAY FREIGHT MARKET REPORT.

There is no special change in the market to-day, and the freight-rates both (ready and forward) are to remain same as yesterday's (11th July).

COTTON.

The following are the latest private cables to hand:—

Weld & Co:—(Liverpool) "Small Saturday market, featureless. Later:—shorts covering fearing hot, dry weather over the week-end." (New York):—"Shorts covering on reports of insufficient rain and on fears of high temperatures in Texas."

Gruning:—Advanced owing to nervourness of parties who are short. Our opinion is that the improvement is only temporary.

Hornby Hemelryk:—(1) "Weather news is very conflicting, mostly manufactured by interested parties. In our opinion crop prospects are generally good. Would advise selling at every fresh advance" (2). "Have good reason to believe that squeeze will be felt in summer months, July and July Aug. Think it very dangerous to be short. Believe it to be prudent to cover shorts at once, or transfer."

Dick Brothers:—(New York) "We advise you to buy futures."

Wolve & Co:—(New York) "We strongly recommend you to buy at this level."

Carpenter Baggott & Co:—(New York) "We have a favourable opinion of the market and recommend buying."

On Saturday there was a further advance of 7 to 8 points in New Crop futures in the American markets. Crop reports are somewhat conflicting, but high temperature in Texas seem to be causing uneasiness, and this was sufficient to affect the market favourably. Private cables from several New York houses are bullish.

The local market opened quiet but steady at Rs. 284 for good Broach and Rs. 253 for fine Khamgaon Akola January. Speculators in the bazaar were buyers of new crop Khamgaons and Bengals yesterday (Sunday). As a mark of respect to the memory of the late Lady Hardinge the market was entirely closed this afternoon.

Nominal Rates are as under.

The following extracts are from the New York correspondents' letter to the Manchester Guardian.

NEW YORK, June 12.

While events in the cotton market during the past week have mostly been favourable the weather in both the Eastern and Western belts being the best experienced so far this season, the cotton market has been very sensitive, aand has readily responded to any demand. One thing which seems to loom up above everything else is the fact that crop conditions generally offer no particular incentive to promote aggressive bearish operations. It is felt that a start as poor as the one made in the South-west this years can hardly be overcome, and that for the remainder of the season the crop will be on the defensive. The weather in the South-west must be ideal during the remainder of the season if Texas and Oklahoma are to produce normal yields. Rain must be had at the proper time to offset any damage from high temperatures, as it is felt that the plant will be in no condition to withstand extreme heat for any period.

THE BOLL WEEVIL.

High temperatures, too, will be necessary at times to minimise the ravages of the boll weevil. Much has been heard of this pest recently, and it is predicted that the damage caused by at this season will he gretaer than ever before. The weather in the South-west up to the time of writing has been decidedly favourable for the spread of the holl weevil, and complaints have been received from many sections of that part of the belt, as well as from the Central States. Sentiment continues very bullish, and it appears that the technical position of the market is still strong. Most of the large long lines are believed to have been liquidated, and it is thought that there has been considerable selling for "short account" during the last few days. The fact that spinners have purchased very little cotton for next season's requirements is recognised as a very strong factor in favour of the constructive side. As regards the recent crop improvement, as a result of improved weather, few believe that the crop can gain sufficient ground to bring the July addition up to the ten years' average.

There is still no telling, however, what the final yield will be. The weather throughout the growing season, the date of the first killing frost, and the amount of damage by various insects must all be taken into consideration. The present bullish attitude of the trade owing to the unfavourable start, according to some people, is unwarranted in view of the present high level of values. Even though it is possible that the next crop will not be sufficient to meet consumptive requirements, it is claimed that prevailing prices will to some extent check the demand. In addition to this, many are not quite certain whether or not consumption will continue to increase next season, in face of the commercial depression the world over. In fact, it is believed that a very discouraging state of affairs prevails throughout the commercial world, especially in this country. Here, in the face of prospects of good crops, with the exception of cotton the number of unemployed is rapidly increasing, and the long-promised decrease in the high cost of living by the present administration is not materialising. As a result, conservatism will be the "watchword" in all trades, and the country will feel satisfied if the conditions do not grow any worse. It is hoped that Congress will adjourn before the summer is over, as in that event some improvement would be looked for. All the above conditions tend to check outside speculation, and this is against a bull market in cotton.

THE WEATHER AND THE ABANDONED AREA

During the past week clear, warm weather has prevailed in the States west of the Mississippi River, where such conditions were urgently needed, while scattered showers occurred in most of the States in the Eastern and Central belts, where the drought was reported to be serious. Texas advices claim that farmers have made considerable headway with crop preparations. However, things in that part of the country are still very backward, and many places report that the stands are poor. It is estimated that fully 25 per cent. must be replanted throughout Texas. In the bottom lands the plant is said to be sickly, and few squares or blooms have made their appearance. It is still believed that there will be considerable abandonment of acreage in the bottom lands, owing to the fact that farmers are unable to work in the fields on account of the water. It is expected that it will be the middle of June before the fields can be ploughed. Still, there are many reports that the abandoned acreage will be small, as cotton planted as late as the 20th June has in other years turned out favourably. Apart from the need of rain in Arkansas, the conditions in the Central States are favourable. Scattered showers have fallen in most places, and in some sections good rains have been experienced.

While more rain is needed all over the Central belt, the plant is not suffering from the heat. Of late high temperatures in this section, as well as in the Atlantic States, have caused not a little anxiety. The crop in the Central and Eastern belts on the whole is far better than last season. Fields are clean, and the plants are stocky, with blooms reported to be fully a fortnight earlier than a year ago. As a result of the favourable showers in Georgia and Alabama, the conditions in these two States are excellent, and farmers hope for record-breaking yields. The boll-weevil is reported to be very active in Alabama and other sections of the Central States, but the ed to be very active in States, but the recent high temperatures, it is expected. will curtail the spread of the pest. The conditions in North and South Carolina are still spotted, the showers there having been light and of little benefit. Still, it is expected that good rain within the next week or ten days will bring about very favourable conditions.

REPORTED THEFT.

Jivaji Khanbai, a dealer in furniture in Mutton Street has reported to the Police that on Sunday he placed his "bundi," in the pocket of which were jewellery, currency notes and cash amounting to Rs. 514, on a bench, and was taking to a customer, and on turning round and looking for it he missed the property.

THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY'S CHARITABLE DISPENSARY.

Dr. B. V. Rayakar, Medical officer in charge of the Theosophical Society's Homoeopathic Charitable Dispensary, 29 Munordas Street, Fort, reports that during the quarter ending 30th June, 1914, 670 patients attended the Dispensary, of whom 243 were males, 368 females and the rest 59 were children.

RUNAWAY HORSE.

A victoria, belonging to Chandulal Dayabhai, was standing in front of Dani Building, Sandhurst Road and the coachman was engaged in wiping the horse on Sunday when the animal took fright and bolting over Sandhurst Bridge turned on to Hughes Road. The horse knocked down an Irani named Jamshed Aspendiar, aged about 55, who was carrying a basket of eggs, at the junction of Hughes and French Roads. The Irani sustained abrasions about his right knee, right elbow and wrist. The horse was eventually secured by a motor driver named Babamia Sheikh Mahomed.

DAILY MORTALITY RETURNS.

Only one attack and one death from plague, were recorded in Bombay City during the 24 hours ended at 6 a.m. on Monday, the single attack being reported from Mazagon. There was also reported a single death from each of cholera and small-pox, the total mortality from all causes during the above period was 74, as compared with 76 of the corresponding period of 1913 and 98 of 1912. The total number of rats caught by the municipal rat-catchers on Saturday last was 1,706, out of which 11 were found to be plague-stricken. One of these latter was contributed by A Ward, three by B Ward, five by C Ward, and one each by D and E Ward. The F and G Wards did not contribute any.

THE COCAINE CAMPAIGN.

At the Esplanade Police Court, before Mr. Frank Oliveira, Third Presidency Magistrate Chief Excise Inspector McCarthy charged a Pathan named Chotan Khan Kalankhan, with illicit possession of one grain of cocaine.

The prosecution story was that on Sunday the accused was seen in Parsi Gully by Excise sepoys who suspected him. He, however, ran away when an attempt was made to arrest him, and hid himself. He emptied the contents of six packets of cocaine into a latrine, burning the paper covers. Imagining himself safe he reappeared and was arrested, the burnt paper and the contests of the packet being recovered.

His worship convicted the accused, and as he had four previous conviction, sentenced him to three months' rigorous imprisonment.

BANDRA DOG-BITE CASE.

ACCUSED ACQUITTED.

On Saturday last, Mr. G. R. Dabholkar, First Class Resident Magistrate Bandra delivered judgment in the case, in which Mr. Gillespie, an ex-Sergeant of the District Police, was proceeded against for his dog having bitten an eight-year-old girl named Soona, a relative of the complainant, Hormusji Mehta.

The Magistrate centred his decision on three points (a) Was the accused the possessor of the dog. (b). Did he take sufficient care to guard against probable danger to human life and (c) did the injury to the girl occur through his knowledge and negligence.

That the dog was that of the accused the Court was satisfied. But for a conviction that was not sufficient. Under section 289, it had to be proved that there was careless management of the animal, which the evidence did not disclose. The essence of offence would be in the fact that the accused knew of the ferocity as deposed to by some of the witnesses. It was very clear that the accused was never informed of a single instance of the bad behaviour of the dog which some of the witnesses had spoken of. The Court disbelieved all the direct evidence in connection with the actual biting by the dog. As for the girl witness Malatibai, on whom the prosecution mainly depended, she was in the opinion of the Court a tutored witness. Dubash Renchod and Kotwal were also liars. The Court was satisfied that it was not proved that the accused knew his dog. was mischievous or ferocious, and in the absence of such knowledge the accused had to be acquitted.

A FAMILY OF DOCTORS.

Dr. (Miss) Kantabai S. Turkhad, L. M. & S., who has just taken her medical degree, is the sixth doctor in the family.

It is interesting to learn of the success of Miss Kantabai S. Turkhud in the last University Examination for the degree of L.M. and S. The Turkhud family in Bombay though small has been well-known as pioneer social reformers and some of them have had distinguished University careers.

It is interesting to note that the present lady doctor is the 6th in the family. Dr. Atmaram Pandurang was one of the first out of a batch of seven who took their degree of G. G. M. C. from the Grant Medical College. His name is well-known; the second was Dr. A. A. Turkhud who after a successful University career returned to India as M. B. (London) but passed away prematurely; the third is Dr. D. A. Turkhud M.B., C.M., (Edin.) at present 1st Assistant to Major Liston, Parel Laboratory; the fourth is Dr. Miss Manekbai Turkhud. Dr. Manekbai commanded a very large practice in Bombay. She was the first Hindoo lady who graduated from the Grant Medical College. The fifth was Dr. Miss Violet Turkhud who has had a most distinguished career in London and returned to India as a London M.D., but unfortunately she died after a stay of six months in India. Dr. Miss Kantabai is the last successful candidate from the Grant Medical College. She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. Bhaskar, Pandurang, who held a responsible post under the rang, who held a responsible post render the first Sir Jamsetjee Jeejibhoy Bart and is younger sister of Mr. B. S. Turkhud who has made himself very popular by his Honorary work in the Students' Brotherhood. Dr. Miss Kantabai has a younger sister studying for the M.B.B.'s degree.

The incident took place in the engine shed at Kolhapur railway station on 31st May when Joseph seeing Mahomed asleep struck him with a club and also assaulted another man who tried to interfere.

CHOLERA IN KASHMIR.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

LAHORE, July 13.

An official communique from Jammu and Kashmir State announces that cholera has appeared in the southern part of the valley of Kashmir. It is now confined to the villages of Doru and Rewa. From 16th June to 6th July, 12 seizures and 37 deaths occurred.

THE WEATHER,

There was very little rain during the week-end, and Bombay is steadily getting, further and further in arrears in the matter of rainfall. A year ago at this time more than half the annual average fall had been registered, but up to yesterday less than quarter of the annual average has been registered—19.51 inches, which is 11½ inches below the average at this date. There were a few showers yesterday, but they were not very heavy nor of long duration.

The weather at sea is still very rough, as the reports appended will show.

Captain E. W. Courtenay of the Bombay and Persia S. N. Company's steamer Homayun, which arrived on Sunday from Port Sudan, reports having met with strong monsoon and high seas.

Captain T. V. Holyoake, of the s. s. Barala, which also arrived on Sunday from Busreh, reports having fallen in with strong wind, heavy sea and very hazy weather during the voyage.

The s. s. Gransbergen, Captain Goot, from Calcutta, met with strong south west monsoon during the voyage.

Captain F. Dunn of the s. s. Richard [redacted] from Bangkok, reports having encountered squally weather and rough seas during the voyage.

ALLEGED THEFT.

At the Mazagon Police Court, yesterday, before Mr. G. R. Khairaz, Fourth Presidency Magistrate, Inspector Power charged Damodar Mohan, a Hindu, with stealing a leather purse containing Rs. 23, belonging to Miss D. M. Watkins, a nurse in the Sir J J. Hospital.

The case for the prosecution was that Miss Watkins was going along the Bhendy Bazaar Road on Sunday afternoon, when near the Pydhowine Police Station, the accused stole the purse. As soon as she saw him, the accused turned round, threw down the purse and ran away. He was however, chased and arrested by a police constable.

The hearing was adjourned.

BREACH OF TRUST.

At the Mazagon Police Court, on Monday, Mr. G. R. Khairaz, Fourth Presidency Magistrate, disposed of the case in which Sergeant Lyons charged one Shunker Ragnnath with cheating in respect of four bags of spices, valued at about Rs. 125.

The case for the prosecution was that a few days ago the accused went to the Ganesh Grinding Mill and asked for four bags of spices. He took delivery of them, saying he would pay the price at Wari Bunder, where he asked them to send one of their men. He then went to the Wari Bunder Goods Yard, and took in the bags, asking the man to wait outside, and telling him he would return shortly. As he, however, did not turn up, the man returned to the mill and informed the manager, who on making enquiries at Wari Bunder found that the bags had been consigned to Poona and not to Pundharpur as the accused had given them to understand. He reported the matter to the police, and Sub-Inspector Shantaram Yeshwant of the G. I. P. Railway Police attached the bags at Poona and arrested the accused.

The accused pleaded not guilty.

His Worship convicted the accused, and having regard to the fact that this was his first offence, sentenced him to a day's simple imprisonment and to a fine Rs. 125, or in default six week's rigorous imprisonment.

HARWOOD FOOTBALL LEAGUE.

A KEEN STRUGGLE.

B. A. C. BEAT G. I. P. 1—0.

Yesterday on the Cooperage, the Bombay Athletic again wrested two points from the G. I. P. Athletic, this time by the narrow margin of a goal to nil. It was a keen struggle from start to finish, both goals being raided in turn, the chief feature of the game being fast and sweeping forward movements which threatened victory or disaster, according to the point of view, every little while. The game teemed with incident and excitement and both charges looked like collapsing dozens of times.

The railway had the better of the exchanges, but finished badly. They had more of the game and more chances of scoring, but they either shot wide or drove in longish grounders, which Bridgewater had little difficulty in negotiating. The B. A. C. on the other hand always looked workmanlike in front of goal. Henshell is a centre who improves with acquaintance, and the manner in which he anticipated passes and attempted to convert them commands admiration.

The B. A. C. played one short,—a new man, Beardsmere, who was to be tried, failing to put in an appearance—in the first half, and in the second period, Elliott, the popular secretary of the W. I. F. A. was pressed into service, who sportingly took the field without the advantage of football boots or shorts. Although, of course, the circumstances prevented his doing anything great, there was indication that he can play, and many would like to see him make a more serious appearance.

The only point scored in the match was registered half way through the second period, when Henshell, taking a pass from Higham, at a twenty-five yard range, favoured Eagle, jr., who had taken Dawson's place, with a well-directed, hard, rising shot, which passed the line, hitting the bar. A more experienced goalkeeper might have saved it.

Both forward lines did exceeding well in midfield, but the railway collapsed when in front of goal. Armstrong's absence was keenly felt. If the railway attack had only used a little judgment when in front of goal a different story would have needed telling. The G. I. P. halves worked hard, as did their backs, Peel being again prominent. Templeton again played a great game at half for the B. A. C.

The following were the teams:—

B. A. C.:—Bridgewater, goal; Harwood and Organ, backs, Elliott, Osborne, and Templeton, halves; Higham, Rockley, Henshall, Murray and Brunness, forwards.

G. I. P. Athletic:—Eagle, jr., goal; Eagle and Peel, backs; Berlase, Shenkling, Muir, halves; Williams, Hayword, Pearman, Ridley and Macdonald, forwards.

Referee:—Mr. H. S. Inwood.

AN INTERESTED APPEAL.

Grinding one's own axe in matters affecting the vital interests of a State or Empire as a whole may be an exhilarating or even a profitable pastime for the grinder. It postulates unmitigated selfishness which can never bode good to the common weal. Self-interest, according to a certain class of philosophic thinkers, may be the motive of every human action. But the verdict of our common humanity, emphasised by the experience of thousands of years, has also taught us that that motive, if pushed to its logical conclusion, is subversive of the general interest stands fast and true. Just as the evolutionists say that while the individual withers the species remains, so in the ordinary economy of a society the interests of the individual must be allowed to merge in the common interest of the whole. Thus the selfishness of Humanity is limited by its nobler altruism. It has therefore become a truism that in the economy of human affairs we have to take broad views from the altruistic point rather than narrow ones from the point of individualistic interest. And in the practical politics of a State the wisest maxim is the one which prescribes the greatest good of the greatest number. That such a maxim of polity comes into constant conflict with individual interests is only natural. But while human verities last such a conflict is inevitable. It is an evil which has to be overcome in order to achieve the ultimate good of which the Benthamites are the greatest protagonists. And it is not known that the Benthamite principle has proved in any way fallacious in its application to the daily affairs of a people, be they civilised or uncivilised, enlightened or unenlightened. If modern economics have taught one imperishable and valuable lesson more than another, after the hard and bitter experience of centuries, it is that of upholding sternly the interests of the masses against the classes. Partisans of the feudal system and protagonists of discarded oligarchical pretensions may inveigh to their hearts' content against what is absurdly called the "new finance" of Mr. Lloyd George. There is nothing new in it. It is as old as the world. The newness lies in the fact that the old-world notions of meum and tuum which had so long been discarded have again been refreshingly brought into active play. It is harking back to the natural from the artificiality of feudal times. The present is the age of transition in the world's economics from oligarchical might to democratic right. No wonder that the forces of the former are now fighting tooth and nail to preserve by hook or by crook the old artificial and unnatural order of things which have so immensely benefited the classes. Capital and capitalism connote their interests. But the economic world is progressing when the connotation must be greatly modified to suit the advancing times of labour which alone creates capital. They are hammering away in India at the exploded doctrines of capitalism, and are for ever proclaiming from the housetops fallacies which cannot bear the searchlight of right and truth. And when foiled here, they appeal to Hercules at home!

One of these appeals has just been heard. A few leading members of the East Indian Section of trade and commerce of the London Chamber waited as a deputation on the Secretary of State for India to draw his attention to what is fallaciously termed a great hardship on the British merchant, who, voluntarily, for his own personal profit or gain, conveys his capital to British India, but is unwilling to pay his just liability to the British exchequer for the profits returned to London and which circulate there as fresh capital. In so appealing of the Secretary of State, this East Indian Section of the London Chamber of Commerce, a potential and influential element, was doing no more than grinding its own axe. Of course, it was entitled to air what, from its point of view, it felt to be a hardship and a grievance which demanded relief or redress. Theirs was to beat the big drum of their own grievances. Theirs was not the function to relate what other people thought of their one-sided drumming. Judging from the reply which Lord Crewe made to Mr. McLeod, the leader of the deputation, it would seem that his Lordship was inwardly convinced, while expressing his lip sympathy apparently to put the deputation in good humour, that the cry was hollow, and that justice to the larger element in the country demanded that he should remain deaf to it. This was a distinct snub. No doubt the adherents and advocates of the East Indian Section of the London Chamber will now inspire the partisan press to open their columns to abundant denunciation of Lord Crewe, and raise an agitation to have these imagined hardships removed. And we may be sure that, taking its cue from the partisan press in London, its counterpart in this country will not be slow to take the matter up and indulge in all manner of fallacies. But the most extraordinary part of this stage-managed affair is the appeal of the East Indian Section to Lord Crewe instead of to Mr. Lloyd George. The Secretary of State for India has nothing to do with the British Finance Bill, for which the whole responsibility lies on the head of the masterful Chancellor of the Exchequer. But conscious of the incongruity of the appeal to Lord Crewe, the East Indian Section was ready beforehand with the plea, that, if the deputation has resolved to wait on Lord Crewe, it was because the holders of British capital in India would be hard hit by the provisions of the Finance Bill, which has spread its income-tax net so wide as to embace all the dominions of his Majesty King George beyond the seas. The plea was plausible, but unconvincing. It is ridiculous to appeal to an authority who is not responsible for the tax, and who cannot move even his little finger to interfere with the proposals of another great Minister of State, who is the author of the financial measure and wholly responsible to Parliament. Perhaps the deputation was conscious of its own weakness and preferred not to face the vigorous dialectics in finance of the fighting Chancellor. Lord Crewe is a mere lamb compared to Mr. Lloyd George who is a lion in British polemics, Still, we think, the roar of the lion is to be heard in the bleating of the lamb. Lord Crewe's reply seems not uninspired by the views the Chancellor of the Exchequer entertains on the subject urged by the deputation.

Briefly, the following were the points urged:—

(1) That the contemplated taxation in the British Financial Bill affected "the welfare of India!"

(2) "That India's trade and commerce was financed by British subjects of British nationality and that the investor unconnected with the trade and commerce of India contributes a negligible fraction to the enormous capital embarked on Indian concerns."

(3) That "even under existing laws capital does not freely follow."

(4) That the proposed additional impost "would check the flow."

(5) That "merchants returning to England would no longer leave in India capital and savings earned in India."

(6) That as a result "investors will be starved and new developments retarded!."

(7) That there will be a "reduced yield" to the Government "under the income tax laws"!!

(8) That the proposed double tax "would seriously menace the placing of Rupee loans by the Indian Government"!!!

(9) That Clause 5 of the Finance Bill should provide exemption of India from the tax.

Pending the receipt of the full text of the proceedings of the deputation, pointing out the arguments in support of these statement[illegible] criticise th[illegible] refrain from [illegible] each and ever[illegible] clusively proved [illegible] seems to have been [illegible] solo object of fri[illegible] Government. This K[illegible]s been played in India t[illegible]mber. Some of the pleas, s[illegible] relating to capital fighting s[illegible]ndia, have been familiar to us from [illegible]days of the reintroduction of the income-tax into India in 1886, and may be fairly discounted. Lord Crewe's reply was a courteous non possumus. He raised no expectations and no false hopes. He went straight to the crux of the grievance and honestly declared that he could not respond to their appeal! He pointed out:—

(1). That there can be no differential treatment. India must be accorded the same treatment, as the Finance Bill contemplates according to all the other Colonies and Dependencies.

(2) That the British taxpayers should not be placed at a disadvantage against Indian and Colonial taxpayers.

(3) That it is an uneconomic policy to allow the better part to pay for the poorer part.

(4). That from the British point of view, the tendency to invest more in foreign parts and less in the country whence capital flows abroad was to be greatly deprecated.

The reply was cold and discouraging to a degree, but eminently just and straightforward. It remains now to register the quantity of tears which will be shed over this non possumus reply.

Notes of the Day

Perverse Criticism.

A very perverse attempt is being made in certain quarters to misrepresent our attitude on the India Council Bill. Those who have taken the trouble to read with care our comments on this ill-considered and abortive measure are fully aware that our objections were based solely on the grounds, that it proposed to set up a scheme of administration at the India Office that would have placed the welfare of the people of this country largely at the mercy of a small band of permanent officials; that it would have robbed the Secretary of State's Council of the powers which it now exercises, thus wholly nullifying the value of the admission of the principle of the elective element; and that, the manner in which the elective principle was proposed to be introduced was in itself inadequate and illusory. The Bill was, therefore, against the interests of the people of this country, which is our chief concern in the view we may take of any sort of measure, in this paper. That certain people began by damning the Bill and ended by giving it a qualified blessing does not entail upon anyone in this country who may be associated with them generally in political questions, the obligation to follow their example. We are aware of the reasons which led to this change of attitude, and we think they were mistaken.

The Bill Widely Condemned.

The wide condemnation of the Bill on all sides serves greatly to justify our criticism of it. Not a single unqualified word of approval of it came from any single quarter, and even those who would have preferred that it should go to a Select Committee rather than be rejected, regarded most of its provisions with grave misgiving. We are glad that it was rejected, because it was extremely unlikely that it would have emerged from a committee in either House, fully shorn of its dangerous provisions, and the Lords' Committee would have been as likely as not to have left in these provisions and taken away the elective clause. We have no sympathy with the motives which inspired Lord Curzon and his friends in many of their objections to the Bill, but, in forming an opinion on a matter of this sort, we are not in the habit of pausing to consider whether we shall be rendered suspect of agreeing with this person or that. That is a sort of self-conscious opportunism which we are content to leave to people who seem to think it a crime to be on the same side as Lord Curzon, even, for widely differing reasons, or to criticise Lord Morley or Lord Crewe, even if they are pursuing a course obviously detrimental to the interests of this country, however excellent their intentions.

A Silly Suggestion.

The criticism that has been directed against our attitude has not one word to say as to the merits of the Bill, itself, but seems to be chiefly concerned with the shocking offence of presuming to criticise Lord Morley and Lord Crewe. It does not matter how many "valuable dictums" Lord Morley laid down; if the Bill was a bad Bill, Lord Morley's dictums would not make it a good one, and were, as we said at the time, merely irrelevant. All this criticism is very ill-informed and perverse. The people who fail to realise that the Bill was dangerous have either not read it, or did not understand it when they had. And we give them credit also of not having read our articles on the subject, or they could not have been so stupid and perverse as to misunderstand and misrepresent so whole-heartedly our attitude on the subject. The suggestion that we have, by opposing the Bill, played into the hands of the bureaucracy, is as silly, as the statement that we ever made an attack on Lord Ripon, is untrue and dishonest.

Exit Huerta.

The curtain has fallen on the last act of the Mexican drama. Senor Carbajal, a member of General Huerta's Cabinet, is to succeed the latter as provisional President of Mexico. The appointment was suggested by General Huerta himself and has been approved, as Reuter notifies, by General Carranza and the United States. For the moment, therefore, there is no further cause for friction between the Federals and the Constitutionalists, and, with the cessation of hostilities, the pacification of the country may well be taken in hand. Thus the Mexican problem has been,—at least temporarily,—solved by Huerta's voluntary resignation, an act which reflects the highest credit on his patriotism. He has not yielded to the Rebels, nor to the United States, but to his patriotism, recognising that longer resistance would "only mean the slaughter of thousands and the possible sacking of the capital." In such manner has the "blood-stained" Huerta at last proved himself to be greater than his enemies, including the United States, whom he kept skilfully at bay for many weary months.

The American Ultimatum.

Huerta's only fault, as far as can be seen, was that Mr. Wilson did not consider his credentials satisfactory, although his authority, established in February 1913, was recognised within six weeks by the European Powers. In August 1913, it was officially notified in connection with Mr. Lind's abortive mission to Mexico that the United States President insisted on three conditions precedent to recognition:—(1) the retirement of President Huerta; (2) the expression of the popular will in a free election; (3) the exclusion of the President from canditature. These points were, with explicit bluntness, resumed in a Message to Congress towards the end of the month.

The Revolution.

By this time the sporadic and chronic unrest in the North had matured into an insurrection against Huerta's Government. The leaders of this were Carranza, ex-Governor of the North-Central State of Coahuila, and Villa, a soldier of sinister reputation. At the very beginning of the insurrection the United States recognised the belligerency of the Rebels by maintaining a so-called embargo on the export of arms and munitions to either side. Subsequently, the Rebels were put on a superior footing by the removal of the embargo as against them in February last. Since then their fortunes have continually improved. Juarez, Torreon and Tampico were one after another taken, and an advance on the capital was threatened and expected till the other day, when Villa finally abandoned the campaign for reasons which, in the light of subsequent events, must now be obvious. Whether, however, Villa becomes a warm supporter of the new regime is extremely doubtful. As for Mr. Wilson, although he emerges from the Mexican situation without having had to use more than a show of force, he cannot claim credit for his policy of watchful drift, which has been throughout a policy of great perplexity and ignorance. By this time he has doubtless become more familiar with Mexican conditions as they actually are, and the limitations of the Mexican people as a self-governing community according to his own high ethical standards.

Irrigation in Bombay.

We learn from the Administration Report for 1912-13 of Irrigation Works in the Bombay Presidency (Accounts and Statistical Statements), just issued, that the net revenue amounted to Rs. 32,81,197, as against Rs. 41,86,260 during the previous year. It is interesting to note that the outlay on irrigation in the Presidency has now reached the enormous total of Rs. 7,69,43,858. The Report describes briefly the working of the various canals in the Presidency and Sind as well as the projects now before the Irrigation Department. As is well known, the conditions in Sind approximate to those of the more rainless parts of the Punjab, and irrigation is even more important there than in the Punjab because the rainfall is lower. Indeed, in Sind the cultivated and irrigated areas are practically synonymous terms, because without irrigation no cultivation is possible. At present three million acres are under irrigation, showing an increase of fifty per cent. over the area of twenty-five years ago. The Bombay Deccan is a country of quite another kind. In any year of normally good rainfall the cultivation is independent of irrigation, but the tract is unfortunately liable to draught. The principal irrigation work in the Presidency is the Nira Canal, the cost of which is estimated at nearly two millions sterling, and which is the largest and most important protective work yet attempted in India.

BELFAST'S BIG DAY.

ENTHUSIASTIC CELEBRATION.

MILITARY CONFINED TO BARRACKS.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

LONDON, July 13.

In brilliant sunshine Belfast to-day celebrated the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne with great enthusiasm. A procession of fifty thousand persons marched through the city with Sir Edward Carson at its head. He received a tremendous ovation at all points. The military have been confined to barracks.

AN IRISH CONFERENCE.

MR. O'BRIEN MAKES A SUGGESTION.

In a column letter to "The Times" Mr. Wm. O'Brien, M.P., argues in support of an All-Party Conference, preceded by an "exclusively Irish Conference." He says:—

Let the House of Lords, instead of consummating the partition of Ireland, to which the Amending Bill invites them, propose an All-Party Conference or Convention such as Earl Grey suggests, and adjourn the consideration both of the Home Rule Bill and of the Repealing Bill for three months pending their report. Every week gained is a danger averted.

But if an Imperial Convention is to be fruitful, it will have to be preceded by an exclusively Irish Conference, generously representative of all denominations of Irishmen, but possibly all the more effective for its purpose if all Parliamentary politicians are eliminated from membership.

The invitations to the Irish Conference could be settled without much difficulty with satisfaction to all sections, and if I hazard mentioning a few such names as those of the Lord Mayor of Dublin (a devoted supporter of Mr. Redmond), the Earl of Shaftesbury (three times Lord Mayor of Belfast), the Earl of Dunraven (the Chairman of the Land Conference), Sir Horace Plunkett (Chairman of the Recess Committee), Lord MacDonnell (the famous Irish Under-Secretary), Mr. Commissioner Bailey, and Colonel Maurice Moore (of the Connaught Rangers), it is only to show how large would be the field of choice among Irishmen of eminence and dispassionate patriotism.

"It is not by way of prejudging their report," adds Mr. O'Brien, "but of proving the necessity for some such appeal to Irish opinion, that I express my confidence that their first point of agreement would be the rejection of the exclusion of Ulster, in whole or in part, for a time or for all time, towards which both British parties are at this moment madly drifting; and, further, that their agreement would not be found irreconcilable with the general scheme of Federal State Government to which Earl Grey would devote the deliberations of his larger Convention of all parties."

Earlier in his letter Mr. O'Brien declares the partition of Ireland to be a "horrible wrong," full of danger.

DUELLING PARIS JOURNALISTS.

GERMAN CORRESPONDENTS CHALLENGED.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

LONDON, July 13.

An Alsatian satirist known as "Hansi" has been sentenced at Strasburg to a year's imprisonment for satirising Germans. He has fled to Paris.

The well-known Paris duellists, Paul and Guy Decassagnec, joint editors of the Nationalist organ L'Autorite, irritated by messages sent from Paris to the Berlin newspapers in connection with the "Hansi" affair have begun a campaign against the German correspondents in Paris, and have already challenged two of them.

EXPLOSION ON CHINESE GUNBOAT.

THIRTY-FIVE CADETS KILLED.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

SHANGHAI, July 12.

An explosion took place to-day on the Chinese gunboat Tungchi, off Kiangnan arsenal, underneath the sleeping quarters of a number of cadets, who were on board.

Thirty-five were killed.

The cause of the explosion is a mystery.

NEW CHIEF OF GENERAL STAFF.

SIR PERCY LAKE TO COMMAND NORTHERN ARMY.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

LONDON, July 13.

"The Times" says:—"It is understood that Lieutenant-General Sir P. H. N. Lake, Chief of the General Staff in India, will shortly receive the command of the Northern Army, Major-General C. A. Anderson, Commanding the Seventh Division at Meerut, succeeding him as Chief of the General Staff."

A Detachment of 83 non-commissioned officers and men of the Munters at Port Blair last week were treated to a tea party followed by a musical entertainment at Government House by the Chief Commissioner and Mrs. Hope Simpson.

[redacted] BUSINESS.

AME[redacted] BILL NEXT WEEK

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

LONDON, July 13.

In the House of Commons to-day, Mr. Asquith announced that there would be an Autumn session. He hoped that the House would rise some time in August. He would ask the House to pass the necessary financial business, Irish Amending Bill, Indian Budget, House of Lords reform and perhaps Housing Bill.

The new session would deal with the Revenue and Valuation Bills and the allocation of grants to local authorities, so that they could be included in the estimates for the next financial year.

He hoped that the Amending Bill would be taken next week. The matter required a great deal of consideration.

BISLEY WEEK OPENS.

EMPIRE-WIDE GATHERING.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

LONDON, July 13.

Bisley week opened to-day in sunshine. This year's meeting is a great Empire-wide gathering. There are already 992 entries for the King's prize.

THE MAILS.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

ADEN, July 12.

The P. and O. s. s. Salsette with the outward mails of the 3rd instant, left here for Bombay at 9 p.m. The P. and O. s. s. Malwa with the mails for Ceylon and Australia left at 10 p.m.

DEATH OF THE CREATOR OF BALKAN LEAGUE.

PRO-RUSSIAN DEMONSTRATIONS IN BELGRADE.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

BELGRADE, July 13.

M. de Hartwig, who was formerly Minister in Teheran, was regarded as one of Russia's most formidable diplomatists and a most dangerous opponent of Austria. He is credited with being the creator and organiser of the Balkan League.

His death is being made the occasion for remarkable official and popular pro-Russian demonstrations, even the King's birthday celebration having been countermanded.

M. de Hartwig, Russian Minister in Belgrade, died suddenly on Friday last while conversing with the Austrian Minister on whom he was calling.

THE NIZAM'S BIRTHDAY DINNER.

RESIDENT'S TRIBUTE TO HIS HIGHNESS.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

SECUNDERABAD, July 13.

The Nizam's birthday dinner and ball held at the Falak Nama Castle on Saturday was a great success, the Officiating Resident and Mrs. Fraser, Generals Wilkinson and Wadeson being among the principal guests.

The Resident in the course of his speech said that the official history of the State was one of steady progress in every department and of the initiation of well considered and far-reaching schemes for the development of the resources of the State and opening up of communications. "I have been much struck" he said, "with the high qualifications of the men in charge of the principal departments of the State. It is unnecessary to mention names, but I can not refrain from congratulating Hyderabad on still retaining the services of those two wise veterans and devoted servants, Nawab Imdad-ul-Mulk and Nawab Fardoon Jung and all will hail with pleasure the honour recently conferred on His Highness's old tutor, Sir Brien Egerton."

Mr. Fraser concluded his lengthy speech by asking the guests to drink the toast of Colonel His Highness Asaf Jah Nawab Mir Sir Usman Ali Khan Bahadur, Nizam of Hyderabad.

The toast was most heartily drunk and the Nizam in reply said that he was deeply grateful for what had been said. "As regards my work," the Nizam said, "all I wish to say is that one ambition of my life has ever been, it is now and will always be, to use my utmost endeavours to help in the advancement of the happiness, contentment and prosperity of my people."

His Highness concluded by proposing the health of Mr. and Mrs. Fraser.

HUERTA'S SUCCESSOR.

SENOR CARBAJAL ACCEPTED.

LONGER RESISTANCE USELESS

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

VERA CRUZ, July 12.

It is believed that General Carranza and the United States have approved the appointment of Senor Carbajal to succeed General Huerta.

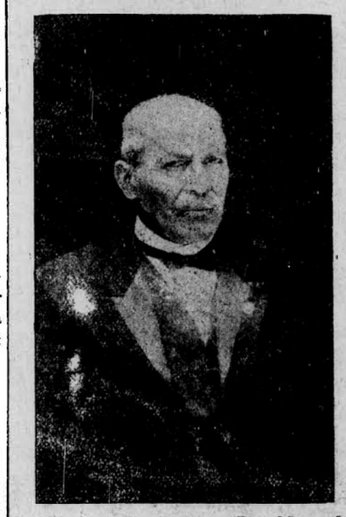
Rear-Admiral Sir Ghristopher Cradock will conduct General Huerta and his family to the coast, where they will go on board a British warship. Huerta and his closest counsellors are leaving already.

VERA CRUZ, July 13.

The ex-Foreign Minister General Ruiz has arrived here on his way to Europe.

He says Senor Carbajal was suggested as provisional President by the Niagara Falls Conference delegates and has been accepted by General Huerta, who has recognised that longer resistance is useless and will only mean the slaughter of thousands and possible sacking of the capital.

GENERAL HUERTA.



President of the Mexican Republic, who is about to resign in favour of Senor Carbajal.

ALCOHOL AS MOTOR FUEL

INVESTIGATIONS BY A COMMITTEE OF EXPERTS.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

LONDON, July 13.

The Imperial Motor Transport Council has appointed a commitee of experts to investigate the possibilities of employment of alcohol as motor fuel which would render the empire independent of foreign fuel supplies and give a great impetus to agricultural development in new countries by means of improved transport facilities.

It is estimated that the researches will cost £6,000 a year for five years.

The Council has appealed for funds. Lord Crewe and Mr. Harvourt have sent letters heartily endorsing its action in view of its national and imperial importance.

FIGHTING IN EASTERN TIBET.

CAPTURED CHINESE SOLDIERS RELEASED.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

KALIMPONG, July 13.

Seven Chinese soldiers captured during the recent fighting in Eastern Tibet arrived here last week. After being kept for a fortnight in Lhassa, the Dalai Lama ordered them to be sent back to China. They speak well of their treatment. They state that the Chinese troops are strongly entrenched at Chaimdo Dhaya, Chhatim Deroay and other towns on the main China-Tibet road and are well provided with ammunitions and provisions.

MR. C. ARNOLD'S LIBEL SUIT.

APPLICATION FOR TRANSFER.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

RANGOON, July 13.

In the Chief Court to-day Mr. C. Arnold, editor of the "Burma Critic" filed a petition for transfer of the libel suit pending against him for damages of Rs. 15,000, brought at the instance of Captain Finnie from the Chief Court to some other high court, on the ground, that all the judges of the Court except two (Justices Robinson and Parlett) had something to do with his case. He submitted that these two judges would be placed in an invidious, difficult and embarrassing position if they were called upon to hear this libel case as, if they decided in the petitioner's favour they would have to take a view contrary to all the other judges. Also the view taken by the Lieutenant-Governor.

ALBANIAN CRISIS.

SITUATION DAILY GROWING WORSE

NOTABLES IN CONFERENCE.

CAPTURE OF BERAT.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

LONDON, July 13.

The situation in Albania is becoming worse daily and firing between outposts at Durazzo occurs every night.

A meeting of forty notables from Northern, Central and Southern Albania was held yesterday under the presidency of the Prince, when the position was discussed.

It appears unlikely that Rumania will assent to the Prince's proposal to send troops to Albania to restore order.

Several of the notables advised the Prince to apply to the Powers for foreign troops.

Others opposed this, preferring simply to ask the Powers to guarantee the frontiers fixed by the Treaty of London.

It is stated that the meeting was most remarkable for the complete agreement between the Catholics and the Mahommedans in favour of the retention of the Prince on the Throne. Nothing, however, has yet been done.

Meanwhile the Dutch General Dewer reports that the position at Berat is most critical, the town being surrounded by the insurgents to the north and the Epirotes to the south.

DURAZZO, July 13.

The insurgents have captured Berat.

PROGRESS OF EDUCATION IN JAMNAGAR.

DECISION TO OPEN NEW HOSTEL.

(From our Correspondent.)

JAMNAGAR, July 13.

The prize-giving ceremony in the Jamnagar High School was held here yesterday. Mr. Sladen, the Political Agent presided at the request of H. H. The Jam Saheb. There were also present: Major Merthon, Major Sarel and the elite of Jamnagar.

Mr. Desai, head master of the school, read an interesting Report on the progress education had made in the high and middle schools in the State since the accession of Jam Shree Ranjitsinhji in 1907. He supported his statement by figures which showed that the number of institutions and the attendance had increased. The drawing class had been developed by the introduction of the third grade course in 1909 and the opening of a painting class in 1912. He adverted to the scholarships founded by his Highness for the encouragement of education in the backward Rajput community and said that the success achieved by this measure gave promise of further success. His Highness had, therefore, decided to open shortly a hostel with accommodation for 50 Rajput boys.

An interesting programme of recitations was gone through after which Mr. Sladen made an interesting speech. He spoke highly of the teaching profession and insisted that moral instruction and the building up of character should occupy a high place in education. He was glad that the staff of this institution attended to it but feared that the rank and file confined themselves to mere transmission of book learning. He was much pleased with the recitations and remarked that the pronunciation of some of the English recitations was particularly good. His Highness followed and thanked the Political Agent for presiding at the function. The Agent, his Highness said, had conferred a unique honour on the High School, as no past Agent except Colonel Kennedy had ever presided at such a function. His Highness announced that thirty candidates had already been secured for the hostel for Rajput boys and that he hoped that Major Harold, the Political Agent, would shortly perform the opening ceremony. Three lusty cheers for the Agent which were called for by his Highness were heartily responded to and the usual distribution of garlands and attar and gulab terminated the proceedings.

ALLEGED THEFT OF A COMPASS.

SEAMAN CHARGED BY P. & O. CO.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

CALCUTTA, July 13.

To-day before Mr. Swinhoe, Chief Presidency Magistrate, an English seaman named Warens was charged with the theft of a compass from the vessel Sicillia, at the instance of the P. and O. Company. It was alleged that accused destroyed the compass and that it would be dangerous to human life to navigate a vessel with only one compass. A second one could not be replaced locally. The case was adjourned until to-morrow.

ALLEGED CONTEMPT BY MRS. BESANT

PROCEEDINGS DISMISSED WITH COSTS.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

MADRAS, July 13.

At the High Court, to-day, the contempt proceedings against Mrs. Besant, which arose out of the suit brought by H. Narayanaiah, were dismissed with costs by Mr. Justice Bakewell, upon the production of the Privy Council's judgment by Mrs. Besant, who was present in Court.

SUFFRAGETTE INCENDIARISM.

RAILWAY STATION DESTROYED

EXPLOSION IN A MAIL BAG.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

LONDON, July 13.

The Suffragettes continue their career of destruction.

An explosion took place in a mail-bag on a train between Blackpool and Manchester and ignited six other bags and also the van itself.

The guard was badly burned while trying to extinguish the flames.

The railway station at Blaby, Leicestershire, was destroyed by fire.

Both above incidents are held to have been caused by the suffragettes.

A woman was also arrested while in act of lighting the fuse of a bomb in the church of St. John Evangelist, Westminster.

The total sum of damages due to suffragette outrages since the beginning of 1913 amounts to £384,000 not including the value of pictures, etc., which are irreplaceable.

SUFFRAGETTES AND THE KING.

RUBBER BALL THROWN INTO ROYAL CARRIAGE.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

LONDON, July 12.

While the King and Queen were driving to the Cathedral at Edinburgh, a Suffragette threw a rubber ball with the usual protest against forcible feeding attached. The ball fell into the Queen's lap. Her Majesty laughingly brushed it aside.

PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

RANGOON, July 13.

In reply to the communication from Secretary to the Burma Government regarding the proposed amendment to the Provincial Insolvency Act of 1907, the Secretary of the Rangoon Trades Association has written to-day approving on behalf of the Association cery in proposed amendments as being necessary and criticizing other sections of the Act.

The Association is of the opinion that no case has been made out by the Upper India Chamber of Commerce for amending Section 33 (1) and (6) on the lines suggested by them. The Association is inclined to think that the alteration would lead to greater fraud by insolvents than practised at present. The Association would point out that there is one very important defect in the Act in respect of insolvents' final discharge. As the Act is administered at present it is invariably the practice for the insolvent not to apply for his final discharge. There is no provision in the Act which compels him to do so and the fact enables him to escape examination by a court. The Association therefore suggests that Section 44 (1) be made imperative, compelling the insolvent to apply for his discharge within a specified time and giving wide powers to the court to annual adjudication on hearing of an application for the final discharge.

CALCUTTA FOOTBALL.

ASSOCIATION CHALLENGE SHIELD.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

CALCUTTA, July 13.

The Calcutta vs. Rangers match in connection with the Indian Football Association Challenge Shield competition resulted in a win for Calcutta by four goals to one.

The Royal Irish Rifles and the East Yorks met on the Calcutta ground under ideal conditions; about twenty thousand spectators witnessed the game. Play on both sides was pretty but not effective.

In the defence, Scully, Howard and Swanell of the Yorks and Caldwell of the Rifles were the most prominent. The most businesslike forwards were Chilas and Grimshaw of the former and Leatham and Tootan of the latter.

Extra time was played and in the last five minutes, the Yorks were presented with the clearest opening of the evening and Brownwell playing himself, put the ball into the hands of McClan. The teams meet again to-morrow on the same ground.

THEFT FROM A BOARDING-HOUSE.

GOOD LOOKING BRUNETTE MAKES OFF WITH TRINKETS.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

BANGALORE, July 13.

Miss Woodhead, a prepossessing brunette of about 30 years of age, well-dressed and wearing a motor veil, was sentenced by Mr. Cox to-day to five weeks' imprisonment for theft in a building in respect of certain trinkets the property of Mrs. Blake, a boarding-house-keeper, who said that accused had run away from her people at Pondicherry.

On June 30th, accused left Mrs. Blake's house and sold the trinkets at a confectioners and was shortly after arrested in the train for Ootacamund. She was undefended and pleaded that Mrs. Blake had given her the jewellery to wear and had refused to take it back.

INSECURITY IN PERSIA.

ROBBERS ON THE SOUTHERN TRADE ROUTES.

BOMBAY SHOPKEEPERS LOOTED.

The conditions on the trade routes in Southern Persia do not show any change for the better; but, on the contrary, if the statement of a Bombay Irani shop-keeper who has travelled over those routes times out of number is to be believed, the lawlessness in that part of the country has considerably increased during the past few months.

A party of Irani shopkeepers left Bombay about four months ago for their native country, Persia. After landing in Persia, they took the Bunder Abas-Kerman route to Yezd. Nothing untoward happened until they reached a place near Daulatabad, when they were waylaid by a gang of robbers, and after being bound hand and foot were conveyed to a lonely place about twelve miles away, and there they were relieved of everything they had with them including about Rs. 1,000 in cash and property worth about the same amount. They were stripped of even their wearing apparel and turned out.

One of the party, who was indiscreet enough to protest against the high-handed action of the robbers was severely belaboured with sticks, from the injuries of which he took more than a month to even partially recover. The party with considerable difficulty and hardships found the trade route again and reached a village, where the people took pity on them, and provided them with clothes and food.

Letters from the members of this unfortunate party have reached their relations in Bombay, from which it would appear that the Bunder Abas-Kerman-Yezd route has of late been infested with robbers to such an extent that it would be looked upon as a miracle if a traveller could go about it unharmed and travellers prefer the Bushire-Shiraz-Yezd route, which though a much more difficult one from the point of view of convenience, is nevertheless not so much exposed to brigandage as the other route.

It would also appear that since the institution of the Swiss Gendarmerie, the Shiraz route has been comparatively safe, but it has led to no mitigation of lawlessness and brigandage in Southern Persia, for what has happened is that the robbers have merely shifted the venue of their nefarious operations from the Shiraz to the Kerman route.

Three of the Bombay shop-keepers who were robbed near Daulatabad are part owners of the Anglo-Indian Hotel and the Roberts' Restaurant in Bombay. One of them, who was over 60 years of age, had intended revisiting the land of his birth for the past decade, but being in mortal fear of the robbers he put off his journey time after time, and said he would never go unless a railroad was built. Eventually, however, he was pursuaded to go.

OPINIONS OF THE DAY.

The Right of Might.

"The Bengalee":—The law that has been quoted is not based on equity but the primitive principle that might is after all the sovereign right. If Indians who are the fellow-subjects of the Canadians have no right to enter Canada, by what right did the forefathers of the present settlers enter that country? The right of invasion and of conquest cannot be challenged in any court of law, but it is not always by the right of superior force that a foreign country is annexed. If the principle of the Canadian law were observed the Canadians themselves would have no business to be where there are. The land belongs to the Red Indians, the children of the soil. They were dispossessed and driven out of the land and thanks to European civilisation and its 'fire water' they have become nearly extinct. The rifle was the law that admitted Europeans to America and it is the rifle again that keeps undesirables out of Canada. The law is merely a make-believe; behind the law is brute force, naked and undisguised, and determined to keep all comers out of its preserve. Go where you will, in South Africa, in Australia, in America, it is everywhere the same.

"Shyam and Ram."

"The A. B. Patrika":—The rejection of the India Council Bill by the House of Lords has produced diametrically opposite feelings on two sets of persons. There are the organs of Anglo-Indian extremists such as the "Times" the "Englishman" and the "Statesman," and these are dancing with hilarious joy. On the other end there is a solitary Indian journal in Calcutta representing the ultramoderate section of the Congress who is beating his breast and shedding jugfuls of tears over it. As for ourselves we don't know whether to weep or laugh. When we see such ardent friends of India as the "Times" and Co., are dying with joy over the fate of the Bill, we are disposed to think there must have been something in it calculated to benefit the Indians. When, however, we remember the joke of the shadow of the shadow of elective principle embodied in the India Council Bill, our risible faculty is affected. "Brother Shyam," says bullock Ram to his yoke-mate, "why are you so sad?" "Haven't you heard that master is going to sell us?" replied Shyam with tearful eyes. Ram laughs and says—"Brother Shyam, you are a little silly. Here we get a few bundles of hay and have to work all day, and the same story will be repeated there. So it is all the same with us whether we are owned by this farmer or the other." Lord Crewe and his Councillors are now our masters, and, possibly in future, our destiny will be in the keeping of Lord Curzon and his Councillors. Is there much difference between the two situations?

THE LATE LADY HARDINGE.

SONS AT DEATH-BED.

TOUCHING PUBLIC TRIBUTES.

ROYAL MESSAGES OF SYMPATHY.

WIDESPREAD GRIEF.

The whole of India has been plunged into grief and messages have been received of universal mourning over the sad demise of Lady Hardinge.

Both Home and Indian papers print the most sympathetic obituary notices and sympathetic references were made from the pulpits all over India.

Lady Meux, sister of Lady Hardinge, has received messages of sympathy from the King and Queen, Queen Alexandra and other members of the Royal family.

Lady Hardinge's sons and brother-in-law were present during Her Ladyship's last moments.

The funeral will take place to-day at South Park, Penshurst. Simultaneously a memorial service will be held in London.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

LONDON, July 13.

Lady Hardinge's sons and brother-in-law were present during her ladyship's last moments.

The papers print the most sympathetic obituary notices, in which they dwell especially on her philanthropic and charitable work, her deep sympathy with the women of India and the part her ladyship played in the formation of the Women's Medical Service. They further recall the great courage displayed by Lady Hardinge in the Delhi outrage.

ROYAL SYMPATHY.

FUNERAL TO TAKE PLACE TO-DAY.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

LONDON, July 12.

Lady Meux, sister of Lady Hardinge, has received messages of sympathy from the King and Queen, Queen Alexandra and other members of the Royal family.

The body has been removed from the nursing-home to the London residence of Lady Meux.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday at South Park, Penshurst, the Kentish seat of Viscount Hardinge, brother of the Viceroy.

Simultaneously a memorial service will be held in London.

BOMBAY.

BOMBAY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The following telegram has been sent by the Chairman of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce to the Private Secretary to H. E. the Viceroy:—

The Members of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce respectfully tender their sincere sympathies to His Excellency the Viceroy in his sad bereavement.

MILLOWNERS' ASSOCIATION.

The following telegram has been sent by the Chairman of the Bombay Millowners' Association to the Private Secretary to H. E. the Viceroy:—

The Members of the Bombay Mill-owners' Association respectfully tender an expression of their sincere sympathies to His Excellency the Viceroy in his sad bereavement.

INDIAN MERCHANTS' CHAMBER.

The following telegram has been sent by the Chairman, the Indian Merchants' Chamber and Bureau, Bombay, to the Private Secretary to his Excellency the Viceroy Simla:—

Please convey to his Excellency the Viceroy on behalf of the Indian Commercial Community their heart felt sympathy in the sad demise of her Excellency Lady Hardinge, a loss which India considers as Her own. We pray that God may give strength to his Excellency to bear this irreparable loss. Purshotamdas Thakurdas, Chairman, Indian Merchants' Chamber and Bureau.

DIAMOND MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION.

The following telegram has been sent by the Honorary Secretary, the Diamond Merchants' Association, Bombay, to the Private Secretary to his Excellency the Viceroy, Simla:—

The Private Secretary his Excellency the Viceroy, Simla. Please to convey to his excellency the Viceroy deep sorrow and sympathy of the Bombay Diamond Merchants' Association at the sad and permature death of her Excellency Lady Hardinge.

KHOJA PANJEBHAI CLUB.

The President of the club has sent the following message to Sir James DuBoulay, Private Secretary to H. E. the Viceroy:—

On behalf of the Khoja Panjebhai Club of His Highness the Aga Khan I beg to convey our heart-felt condolence and deepest sympathy to H. E. the Viceroy in his saddest and most terrible bereavement. We feel the loss as a personal one and are truly and deeply grieved at the sad and untimely death of so great and good a lady whose loss will be keenly felt by all classes of the Indian communities among whom she was deservedly popular. May God give strength to our beloved Viceroy to bear the sorrowful burden of the most grievous loss.—Cassamally Jairazbhoy, President, The Khoja Punjebhai Club.

A similar message has been also sent by the Maratha Aikeyuchhu Sabha.

BOMBAY CORPORATION

ELOQUENT TRIBUTES.

The adjourned meeting of the Bombay Municipal Corporation was held yesterday afternoon in the Municipal Council Hall, the President, Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy being in the chair. A sympathetic reference was made to the death of Lady Hardinge, and after passing a resolution condoling with H. E. the Viceroy the meeting adjourned without transacting any business as a mark of respect.

The President, in opening the proceedings, said:—

With the deepest regret we have heard the most grievous news of the death of Lady Hardinge. It is difficult to imagine anything more pathetic than this tragic event, and the distress caused by it throughout this country it is impossible to exaggerate.

Gentlemen,—Great was our rejoicing when his Excellency the Viceroy recovered from his last illness. The calm, courage and fortitude displayed by Lady Hardinge on that occasion evoked the most fervent admiration of the people combined with heartfelt gratitude for the many kind acts of her Lady ship for the welfare of the women of India, and the numerous messages and addresses of congratulations which were sent to her from all parts of the country, bespoke how completely she had captured the imagination, and conquered the hearts of the people. We had hopes then that we should get at least one more opportunity of finally giving expression to our appreciation of her whole work, when her husband laid down the reins of office. But that opportunity is denied us. It has been willed otherwise, and with the Viceroy, we all mourn to-day her irreparable loss.

SIR BALCHANDRA.

Sir Bhalchandra Krishna then moved:—"That the Corporation have received with profound sorrow the mournful intelligence of the death of Lady Hardinge whose genial, sympathetic and kindly disposition and whose solicitude for the welfare of the people entrusted to the care of her illustrious husband, particularly of the women of India, had endeared her to all classes and communities; that the President be requested to send a suitable message of condolence to his Excellency expressive of the universal feeling of grief evoked by the sad event and conveying to him the heartful sympathy of the Corporation in his bereavement; and that as a mark of respect to the memory of Lady Hardinge this meeting do adjourn without proceeding to the transaction of business."

Sir Bhalchandra said that on an occasion like this, it was not necessary to say any words. The death of Lady Hardinge was not only a loss to the Viceroy but it was a loss to the whole of India.

SIR E. RAHIMTULLA.

In seconding the proposition, Sir Ebrahim Rahimtulla associated himself with all that had been said by the President and the mover of the resolution, and said he was not exaggerating when he said that when the intimation of this sad event reached India, the people of this continent were shocked at the suddenness of the severe blow which had fallen upon their greatly beloved and popular Viceroy. It was extremely difficult to be resigned on such occasions, but if it was any consolation to feel that a vast nation like the people of India sympathised in the sad bereavement that had befallen his Excellency, that consolation was undoubtedly his. The hearts of the people had gone out to his Excellency in the sad bereavement that he had sustained, and they all prayed that his Excellency might have sufficient courage and fortitude to bear the irreparable loss that he had sustained with resignation.

MR. WACHA.

Mr. D. E. Wacha said that in the case of ordinary persons the loss of a dear wife was irreparable, but in the case of a Viceroy of the position and influence and great popularity like Lord Hardinge, the loss became vastly emphasised. It was a cruel stroke of fate which had befallen him, and the stroke was doubly cruel by reason of the fact that it was only four months since the husband had been separated from the wife and the distance of 6,000 miles which separated him and his dear, loving little daughter Diamond from the lady who had died in London When they remembered her love, affection, attachment and devotion to her husband and her great courage, they could realise what it was to hear of this loss. Not in the whole history of India since Viceroys were appointed, had such a calamitous event occurred, since the death of Lady Canning. She, too, was a devoted wife who stood by the side of her husband in the darkest days of the mutiny while the fate of the Empire was trembling in the balance. Day and night she was at his elbow, and one could still read in the pathetic epitaph on her tomb at Barrackpore what an Englishwoman Lady Canning was.

He endorsed every word in the resolution, and he deemed it to be their duty, not as members of the Corporation, but as combined citizens representing Bombay, that a message of condolence and sympathy should be conveyed to their beloved Viceroy.

Mr. H. P. Mody said that the sad event had stirred the hearts of every Indian. Her Excellency had possessed a rare combination of womanly virtues and womanly courage which had deeply impressed the people of this country. By her sympathy and benevolence she had won the hearts of all Indians, and he had no doubt in his mind that sympathy would flow in abundance to Lord Hardinge, which might console him a little and enable him to bear his heavy burden.

Mr. Mirza Mahomed Ali Khan said the occasion was too sad and solemn for words. Their hearts went forth with the deepest sympathy to the Viceroy, who had, during the short term of his office, endeared himself to every community in India and he could not forget that their hearts also went forth to the young child, the Hon. Diamond Hardinge, who had sustained an irreparable loss in the death of her dear mother.

Mr. J. A. D. McBain also associated himself with the previous speakers, and said that they with one mind and one voice showed their deepest sympathy to the Viceroy, and the Hon. Diamond Hardinge in their great bereavement.

The resolution was then passed in solemn silence, all the members standing, and the meeting adjourned.

WIDESPREAD SYMPATHY.

REFERENCES IN THE CHURCHES.

Preaching at the evening service in the Cathedral on Sunday, the Ven. Archdeacon Barham said:—"There is not one amongst us who was not overcome with feelings of the very deepest sympathy when he heard this morning the sad news of the death of the wife of His Excellency the Viceroy. The suddenness of it appalled us and our thoughts were transferred at once to him who has suffered the severest blow that can come to any man. Like all men he must bear it silently and alone for none can comfort but God. When Almighty God instituted and blessed the sacred and holy union between a man and his wife, He conferred upon us one of the greatest blessings which this life can give. 'For this cause (said God) shall a man leave his father and his mother and shall cling unto his wife and thy twain shall be one flesh.' When this holy union has been entered upon in the fear of God and has been sanctified by Him there is no condition of life that brings greater and deeper happiness. And when the hand of death touches this holy union and separates—it may be only for a time it is true—those two lives which have each supplied to the other what it lacked, we see it in its cruellest aspect. It may touch any other relationship and leave its markless heavily upon us. In all our lives the sacred ties which bind man and wife together equip that holy union to face the troubles of life and meet its adversities with a calmness and resignation impossible apart from it. I may say that trouble and adversity and suffering often bring their recompense in binding closer together the man and his wife and by an increase of sympathy between each make each more dependent on the other. This, I say, is true in the lives of all of us who have with God's blessing experienced the happiness of the married state. And with him who has suffered this loss how much truer this must be. It seems only a few months ago since we were all deploring the attempt which was made to assassinate him, and at that time every heart bounded with pride at the heroic spirit displayed by her whose loss we now mourn. If was she who stood by him in his hour of danger, heedless of her own. It was she who watched over him as he slowly recovered from the shock and it was she who praised God, with a hankful India, for his recovery. Such disasters come to few of us in our lives, but when they do come they bind husband and wife together with chains of sympathy and love which are immeasurably the stronger for the experience. And the breaking of those chains, if it may be only for a time—and God grant His Excellency may have faith given him to feel this—must bring a sorrow and leave a void which few amongst us can appreciate.

"At this morning's service we did what alone can avail to bring real comfort to the sorrowing. We prayed specially when we offered the Holy Eucharist that God would comfort him in his sorrow and we prayed also that the soul of her whose loss we mourn may rest in peace and that light perpetual may shine upon her. And may God in His mercy make it plain to him and to us that His ways are ways of love. I know that many prayers will ascend to the Throne of God for him whose sorrow we are trying to share. May God Almighty comfort him."

FREE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND.

The Rev. R. M. Gray, at the United Free Church of Scotland, also made a special reference to Lady Hardinge's death. He said: "To-night our hearts are very full of sympathy with ous Viceroy in the terrible sorrow which has fallen so suddenly upon him. Lord Hardinge has been a much-tried man, an that he should have lost his brave wife after all the trouble and danger they have faced and borne together, is a mystery which we cannot fathom. She was a loyal help-mate, and comrade to him in the responsibilities of an office which have at any time a very heavy burden upon its holder, and which haas brought to him very special calls for wisdom and fortitude. They parted in this city but a few weeks ago, weeks during which very grave anxiety must have been his portion, and it is with great grief that we think of his loneliness now.

"Together they upheld well the traditions of high public service in this and, and Lady Hardinge showed an interest in the welfare of India's women which was as far as possible from being merely official. Her courage at a moment of peril we shall not forget, nor her devotion to duty whatever the cost might be. And to the ruler and husband whose path must now be uncheered by a companionhip which nothing ship which nothing else can replace we offer our most sincere and reverent sympathy."

THE LORD BISHOP'S TRIBUTE.

The Lord Bishop of the Diocese preaching to a crowded congregation in St. Paul's, Poona, on Sunday evening, said: "It is by a tragic coincidence that I should be speaking of married love on the very day on which we have received the news of the blow which death has dealt to one of the happiest of marriages.

All India has watched with respectful sympathy and admiration the happiness and devotion of the pair who for the last three and a half years have filled the very highest places in the land. Lady Hardinge's great courage on the sad day at Delhi and the still more admirable courage and spirit with which she supported the long tedium of the Viceroy's recovery are fresh in all minds. Fresh too is the example she has shown us what a Christian woman should be in private life and in public duty. And now she has been called away. A cable has been received to-day that she is dead. No words can express what any heart that is human must feel for the husband to whom she was so much. Let none of us to-night fail to beseech the God of all comfort that according to His infinite mercy and His marvellous working he will support and raise up the heart of the Viceroy in his affliction.

The hymn "Peace perfect peace" was sung.

In the solemn silence which followed the Bishop prayed earnestly that God would visit the Viceroy in his sad affliction. The congregation stood while the organist played Chopin's Marche Funebre.

REFERENCES AT THE POLICE COURTS.

At the Esplanade Police Court, yesterday morning, Mr. Frank Oliviera, Third Presidency Magistrate, before proceeding with the business of the Court, addressing the bar said:—

We meet to-day under a great shadow which has enveloped India. To every loyal citizen the death of Lady Hardinge must cause keen sorrow and intense pain. One could hardly realize that her end was so near when about three months ago she left these shores in order to recuperate her health in her native clime, and to enjoy a little rest after the great trials and worries she had undergone in India. I need hardly refer to the courage and coolness of temperament that this noble lady displayed at the time of the Delhi outrage, which called forth admiration from us all. She had endeared herself to every one by her great sympathy with the legitimate aspirations of the Indians, and her unremitting solicitude to alleviate misery and suffering whenever they could be detected. India is much poorer to-day for the loss of this noble lady.

Our hearts are wrung with sorrow at the loss we have sustained in her untimely and unexpected death. What then must be the grief of our dear Viceroy,, and how little we can do to assuage that grief. Our minds and hearts go out to him in his dire distress. We deeply sypmathise with him and his children in their bereavement; and we can only hope and pray that God, who in His inscrutable wisdom has permitted such a heavy below to fall on our great and noble-minded Viceroy, may also grant him fortitude and consolation in this sore and severe trial. May the soul of Lady Hardinge rest in peace.

Mr. S. Y. Dalvi said that on behalf of the Bar and others present, he need only say that they fully endorsed every word that had fallen from His Worship's lips. From beginning to end what His Worship had uttered was the truth and nothing but the truth. His Worship had rightly judged the Viceroy as a man, and Lady Hardinge as a noble lady. He spoke of the great sorrow of all the children as they left the schools that day when they remembered that this very lady, because Providence had been so kind to her husband, had all the children feasted on that occasion. He had nothing more to add, but to endorse every word that had been uttered, and to say that in the world each one had to suffer. He recalled Longfellow's beautiful line: "Suffer and be strong," and prayed, as His Worship had prayed, that Providence might comfort the Viceroy.

HONORARY MAGISTRATES' CONDOLENCE.

At the Honorary Magistrate's Court, Girgaum, the Bench, consisting of Mr. Tribbowandas Mangaldas and Mr. V. S. Joshi, before proceeding with the business of the Court, recorded their deep sense of sorrow at the sad news of the untimely death of Lady Hardinge, an event which had caused a great loss to India generally and to Indian women in particular, and begged to sympathise with their beloved Viceroy, Lord Hardinge, in his sad bereavement.

Inspector O'Brien expressed on behalf of the Police Officers, their sense of sorrow in the loss the public had suffered in the untimely death of Lady Hardinge.

At the sitting of the Dadar Bench of Honorary Magistrates Mr. B. N. Motiwalla (Chairman) and Mr. A. F. Sells, the former made a reference to the sad death of H. E. Lady Hardinge and referred to the work she did for India and her kindly interest in the welfare and advancement of the people.

UNIVERSAL HELPING SOCIETY.

At the fortnightly meeting of the Universal Helping Society held on Sunday evening in the hall of the Society at Ganeshwadi Lane a resolution was passed expressing deep regret at the untimely and sudden death of her Excellency Lady Hardinge which took place so soon after a report in the journals that a successful operation had been performed on her in England; and it was further resolved that a telegram be sent to the Private Secretary of his Excellency Lord Hardinge expressing their heartfelt sympathy with his Excellency in his unexpected bereavement.

SCHOOLS CLOSED.

Amongst the Schools that were closed on Monday out of respect to the memory of Lady Hardinge, and to show their sympathy to our great Viceroy were the following:—The Sir Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy Parsee Benevolent Institution, The Byramjee Jeejeebhoy Parsee Institution and College of Commerce, the Fort and Proprietory High School (Gowalia Tank), The Wilson High School and the Panalal Jain High School

MESSAGES OF SYMPATHY.

BOMBAY PRESIDENCY ASSOCIATION.

The Bombay Presidency Association has sent the following telegram:—

The Council of the Bombay Presidency Association have learned with feelings of the most profound sorrow the mournful news of the unexpected and untimely death of Lady Hardinge. F. Panthaki, Honorary Organiser of the Classes, to his Excellency Lord Hardinge.

MESSAGE OF CONDOLENCE.

The President Sir Fazulbhoy them sent the following message of condolence to His Excellency the Viceroy at Simla:—

"The Bombay Municipal Corporation have received with profound sorrow the mournful intelligence of the death of Lady Hardinge, whose sympathetic and kindly disposition and whose solicitude for the welfare of the people entrusted to your Lordship's care, particularly of the women of India, had endeared her to all classes and communities. All the citizens of Bombay deplore her loss as a grievous personal bereavement and we consider it a public misfortune that the career of so gracious and kind-hearted a lady should have been thus suddenly cut off in the prime of life and in the midst of the benevolent work which she had graciously set before her for the amelioration of the condition of the women of this country.

In the midst of universal mourning all hearts are turned to your Excellency and I am desired by the Corporation to convey to you their heartfelt and respectful sympathy and their prayer that the Almighty will sustain your Lordship and your children in this great trial and that the affectionate sympathy and devotion of all the people of this land, who share your sorrow may be of some consolation to your Lordship and may encourage you to face the duties of your high office, to which, leaving aside personal considerations, you have so unsparingly devoted yourself to the lasting benefit of the people."

CALCUTTA.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

CALCUTTA, July 13.

The tragic death of Lady Hardinge has caused a deep shock here.

At the Cathedral yesterday special hymns and prayers were given by the Rev. R. W. H. Stewart.

The Senior Chaplain read a telegram of the deep sympathy which had been addressed to His Excellency the Viceroy's Private Secretary by the diocese of Calcutta.

The Chaplain added that the death had filled the whole of India with universal and genuine sorrow. As members of the congregation they would recall that their Excellencies had attended the service there as recently as last Christmas. They dwelt with gratitude upon the example of Christian charity which Lady Hardinge had ever displayed on behalf of the sick and suffering and for the children, both English and Indian, up to the day of her death. Those who knew her would recall the pride and enthusiasm with which she had seconded her husband's efforts and stood undaunted at his side in the hour of danger.

At the old Mission Church the Rev. F. B. Hadow suggested that the congregation should remember in prayer throughout the coming week those who had been stricken by the sorrow. The hearts of all would go out to the Viceroy.

PRESS TRIBUTES.

A WOMANLY WOMAN.

Lady Hardinge was so essentially a womanly woman that only those who peered below the surface appreciated the very remarkable qualities she possessed. She did not attempt to "run" anyone or anybody; she was content to discharge the social duties of the Viceroyalty and to help forward yet another stage the work of lightening the terrible burden of unnecessary suffering borne by the women of the East. Two very impressive memorials of her concern in the lot of the Indian women are already extant in the college for the medical education of women at Delhi and the movement to train Indian dhais or midwives, which has its counterpart in Lady Willingdon's scheme for the Instruction of midwives in Bombay City. Both these schemes go very near to the root of the maternity problem in India. The time was ripe for a forward move and to supplement the admirable work of the Dufferin Fund, in providing medical relief for women by women and in training Indian nurses, by educating Indian women as doctors in a special institution of their own. In addition to this education at the top there is the great task of imparting some instructions to the dhais, who have only an empirical knowledge of their business and who apart from the hospitals must represent the only form of skilled assistance Indian women can obtain in their hour of need for a generation at least. These movements associated with her name will keep green Lady Hardinge's memory in India long after the recollections of her own personal charm have faded from the minds of our quick-moving generations. They reveal the practical commonsense and perspicacity which she possessed in a very marked degree. But they do not illustrate the depth and stead-fastness of her character, that was tried in the furnace eighteen months ago and emerged pure metal.—Times of India.

DISTINGUISHED VICEREINES.

It is remarkable the number of distinguished women who have come to India as the consort of the Viceroy. This may be a mere fortuitous circumstance, but it is possible to gain the impression that the great honour and responsibility of Governor-General only goes to a statesman who has a stateswoman as a wife. This is sufficiently illustrated by a glance at the names of the ladies who have come to India as the wives of Viceroys during the past thirty years. Lady Dufferin has left an imperishable record in India; Lady Lansdowne scarcely shines less in her work for this country; poor Lady Curzon endeared herself to all, and no more distinguished woman ever set foot in India than Lady Minto. To continue the work and uphold the traditions of these illustrious daughters of the Empire is no light task, but it needs recording only in the simplest language that Lady Hardinge was of the same great type of womanhood in the possession of which Great Britain is peculiarly distinguished. She imparted in the beauty and and charm of her person that sense of power which seen is never misunderstood, and marks its possessor as a leader of mankind. Naturally, the greatest concern of the lady who is the wife of the Viceroy, is the unlimited field for work and effort on behalf of the women of India. Every lady who holds the position endeavours to leave her impress upon this great task. Although Lady Hardinge was with us only a little over three years she has worked in this field with distinction. Lady Hardinge has provided the proper sequence of the great work of Lady Dufferin and has done a work for India which must endear her name to the women of this country.—Advocate of India.

A MOTHER TO THE INDIANS.

The "Bombay Samachar" writes: Ever since her arrival in India with her gracious husband, Her Excellency Lady Hardinge had acted as a mother to the Indians, and there is not a single house that is unaware of her name and good deeds. The great courage and patience that she displayed at the time of the dastardly outrage committed by some enemy or enemies of India, were a proof of her deep feelings for the Indians, and, like her husband, she had refused to condemn the Indian as the perpetrator of that ghastly crime.

After describing Her Excellency's activities in various spheres for the betterment of the Indians, the paper goes on to say: When unmerited attacks were made against His Excellency, the Viceroy for his liberal and broad-minded statesmanship by the Anglo-Indians here and in England, Her Excellency's help and consolation greatly encouraged the Viceroy to pursue his liberal policy. It is India's misfortune that the noble lady who served as a mother has been cut off in the prime of life. We pray to the Almighty to grant our beloved Viceroy additional strength to bear this sudden and irreparable loss, and may Her Excellency's soul inspire him and encourage him the more to complete the good work with which Her Excellency's pious name is associated, and which His Excellency has so nobly undertaken.

A PERSONAL LOSS.

India has had few Viceroys in the past, says "The Parsi," who can compare with Lord Hardinge in their depth of sincerity, in their deep sympathy for the Indians, in their devotion to the cause of India and in their unfaltering courage to do what was right and just, irrespective of consequences, and it is sad to think that a Viceroy combining in him such unique qualities should be called upon in the midst of his devoted labour in the cause of India, to bear the burden of a great domestic sorrow. But it [redacted] Lady India. her husband lend her had by her what she can women of India. There were few ity in which she it would be no exat India is all the of this great English th will be mourned s a personal loss and on arsi community, we tender to ncy the community's respectful s in the great bereavement.

The death of Lady Hardinge has plunged all India into mourning. The sudden news has come like a thunderbolt. She was a shining light at the social functions which form no unimportant part of the Viceroy's office. She was ready with her sympathy and aid in works of charity and benevolence, notably the relief of sickness and distress. She will leave a wide gap in society. But the void she has made in the heart of her husband can never be filled. We in India have been making appeals to the King for extending the term of office of one of the very best Viceroys we have had. We should be loth to part with him at any time, and we were eager to enjoy the benefits of his administration to the utmost by keeping him, as long as we can in our midst. This hope, we may presume, is now doomed to disappointment. It would be a very hard trial for any man to live and move amidst scenes which would remind him constantly of his desolation. In so far as the death of Lady Hardinge may have blighted the prospect of the Viceroy's extension of service, we take it as a misfortune to India. So we doubly bewail her loss, first for the sake of her husband and, again, for the sake of this country. We have greater reason than ever to execrate the dastardly deed at Delhi, because we now learn that the shock of the event and the anxiety which she experienced throughout the dangerous condition of her husband, seriously affected her health. If the deepest sympathy and condolence can be of any avail it is at the service of our beloved Viceroy, in abundant measure, in this hour of overwhelming sorrow.—Sanj Vartaman.'

(ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

MADRAS, July 13.

The "Madras Times" writes:—"Deepest sympathy will be felt with t' e Viceroy in the blow which it has pleased Providence to inflict upon him. Sympathy, not lessened by political differences but springing from depths of our common nature, we feel assured will flow from every source and will go far to comfort His Excellency even in the great grief under which he is suffering. "

MADRAS, July 13.

The "Madras Mail" says that the thoughts of whole India will be with the Viceroy in the sad bereavement. It trusts that it will not prevent the Viceroy remaining in office for the seventeen months still to elapse though the Viceregal Court will remember with sadness the gracious presence and charming personality of her who used to lend it such grace and distinction.

A DISTINCTIVE PERSONAGE.

KARACHI, July 13.

The "Sind Gazette" writes:—"It is not often that the personality of a Viceroy's wife takes vivid reality in the public mind in comparatively modern times. Lady Northbrook, Lady Lytton, Lady Ripon, Lady Lansdowne and Lady Elgin, though all of estimable worth, graceful presence and gentle character were wholly unknown to the populace. Lady Dufferin, Lady Curzon and Lady Minto gave their names in prominence to philanthropic funds charged with missions of tender kindness to suffering women in India. But the names and not the individualities of these benevolent dames are all that the common mind has in possession. Lady Hardinge by single exception became a distinctive personage for the multitude, who recognised in her a heroine from the fateful day when she stood serene by her fainting lord amidst the ensanguined debris of the burst bomb and calmly passed the order for the broken procession to proceed."

PROPOSED BOMBAY MEMORIAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "CHRONICLE."

Sir,—The sad and untimely death of Lady Hardinge has caused a profound and poignant grief among Indians of all shades and opinion and has cast a deep gloom on every Indian home. From a prince to a humble peasant her death is genuinely mourned, and it is no exggeration to say that since the death of our beloved Queen Victoria, no such event has evoked such wide-felt sympathy and such intense and unparalleled distress as Lady Hardinge. As you rightly say no nobler lady ever accompanied a Viceroy to India. The unanimous voice of India has proclaimed her to be a heroine. To us she was more than Nur-Jhan (the light of the world) and Indians had come to regard her as their truest friend. She was a mother ta the humble, and the poor, and the reason why she had won our hearts was that she spoke to us in simple language that came straight from her heart and went straight to ours and her will, words and works were like points in a straight line. She lived and laboured for the good of womanhood in India.

I find that there is a general desire in our city to commemorate the name and virtues of the noble lady-who had enthroned herself on the affectionate hearts of men and women, old and young—by an enduring monument that shall hand down to future generations a visible memorial of our reverence for her and of her great and glorious work. If such a monument is set on foot I am sure, the Princess and peoples of the Presidency will generously contribute to it. A Women's medical college in Bombay or some similar institution, which shall be in accordance with the wishes and feelings of the deceased lady, and which could be decided later on, would secure the hearty and generous support from all sections of the Indian communities. If such a monument is started that would be the best means of expressing our gratitude to Lady Hardinge.

ECHO OF RECENT RAILWAY STRIKE.

SUIT AGAINST THE A. S. R. S.

(Before Mr. Justice Davar.)

HERMAN THOMAS ENGLEKON v. THE AMALGAMATED SOCIETY OF RAILWAY SERVANTS FOR INDIA AND BURMA.

By consent of the parties a decretal order of reference to the Commissioner for taking accounts was made by His Lordship in this suit.

Mr. R. S. Dadachanji appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Bamanji Jamsetji Wadia for the defendants.

This was a suit filed by the plaintiff in form a pauperis in the Small Cause Court to recover a sum of about Rs. 1,976 from a the defendants on account of his salary, bhatha, travelling and other general expenses. By an order made by Mr. Justice Batchelor, during the last vacation, the suit was, on the affidavit of Mr. Gibbons, the secretary of the defendant society, transferred to the High Court. The plaintiff subsequently increased his claim to Rs.2,500 and odd. This claim was made by the plaintiff in his capacity as one of the travelling agents of the defendant society, who had employed him as such at Madras on a monthly salary of Rs. 175 during the strike on the G. I. P. Railway and the M. and S. M. Railway which took place in the months of May and June, 1913. The defendant society disputed his claim. The suit came on before His Lordship and was referred by him to the Commissioner to take an account of the sum, if any, due to the plaintiff in respect of his claims made in the plaint, to take an account of all sums received by the plaintiff from the defendants, and to ascertain what was due from one party to the other.

Solicitors for the plaintiff:—Edgelow, Gulabchand Wadia and Co.

Solicitors for the defendants:—Ardesher, Hormusji, Dinsha and Co.

SCHOOL BUILDING FOR ANDHERI.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "CHRONICLE."

Sir,—It appears that it is contemplated to erect a new school near the Amboli Church, Andheri, and a subscription list is shortly to be opened. There is an urgent necessity for a good school at Andheri, where educational facilities could be provided, not only for the children of Andheri, but also for the surrounding villages. It is therefore imperative that the proposed school should be located in a central spot, and the most suitable place appears to be near the junction of the four main roads at Andheri.

The proposal to provide a decent building for a school near Andheri is without doubt a laudable one, and the generous public will surely support the scheme and subscribe liberally towards, it, and Goverment may even be disposed to contribute a building grant. But the public and Government should see that the greatest advantages possible are obtained from the expenditure, which can only be attained if the school is situated in a central locality such as the one indicated above. It is to be hoped that in such an important matter, the public good will not be subordinated to the wishes of particular persons or the needs of a particular village.

TRIAL OF JAFFER JOOSUB

EVIDENCE OF CREDIT BANK SECRETARY

At the seventh sitting of the third Criminal Sessions of the Bombay High Court Mr Justice Hayward and a special jury resumed the hearing of the case in which Superintendent Sullivan of the C.I.D., chraged Jaffer Jusoob, lately manager of the Credit Bank (now in liquidation), with criminal breach of trust as a servant in respect of Rs. 48,588-5-3 between the 10th December, 1912, and 10th June, 1913, and in respect of a further sum of Rs. 16,000 on 1st September, 1913.

The Hon. Mr. M. R. Jardine, Acting Advocate-General, and Mr. M. F. Nicholson, (instructed by the Hon. Mr. E. F. Nicholson, Public Prosecutor), appeared for the Crown; the accused was defended by Mr. K. Mc. Kemp and Mr. Rustam J. Modi, (instructed by Messrs. Mansuklal, Hiralal and Mehta, Solicitors).

Other brokers were examined by the prosecution to speak to the various share transactions.

Dost Mahomed Noor Mahomed, nephew of Jaffer Jusoob and Secretary of the Credit Bank, examined by Mr. Jardine, said that he was a student in the Elphinstone College before he joined the Bank. From February, 1911, to April, 1912, he worked as a candidate and he was appointed Secretary by the Board on the 27th July, 1912, on a monthly salary of Rs. 250. The directors' resolution appointing him as Secretary was not communicated to him, but he had seen a copy of it when it was sent to the Bank. He acted as Secretary and drew the pay until the Bank went into liquidation.

How old are you?—About twenty-eight.

Did you work under the manager?—No, not directly. I worked under the accountant The accountant worked under the manager.

His Lordship—What was your business?—Signing cheques which were to be collected from other banks and signing share certificates of the Bank.

The witness, continuing, said that he endorsed Government promisory notes signing for the accountant. He did not negotiate for loans, securities or pledges. He signed deposit receipts and other receipts of the Bank. He did not remember having ever signed accounts in connection with the bank's business. When the badla business was begun by the Bank, it was Hassan Brothers who checked the brokers' bills.

Witness then formally proved certain documents of the Bank signed by him.

Cross-examined by Mr. Kemp, witness said that he knew the businesses of Hassan Brothers as a friend and not as an employee of the Bank. They had dealt in mines, had done business in diamonds, shares of joint stock companies, silver, Government Promissory notes and cotton futures. They had owned a firm also. They had acted as brokers of the Bank. He was not aware that they had done any brokerage for the Mandvi and Kalbadevie branches of the Bank. In the first syndicate that dealt in shares, the members were his father, Noor Mahomed, Hassan Brothers and Ahmed Mahomed. He did not come to know that in his capacity as Secretary of the Bank. He knew what was the interest of each of them.

Tell us what that was?—My father was interested for twelve annas; I do not know about the shares of the others.

Do you know if the other four annas share was between them?—Yes, it must have been between them.

To further questions put by Mr. Kemp, witness said that the second syndicate consisted of Rustam K. R. Cama and his father Noor Mahomed. Hassan Brothers were the people interested in the half share of his father in this syndicate, which lasted for two months. During the second month his father was ill, and Hassan Brothers used to do the work for him. He did not know what interest they had in the account. The third syndicate consisted of the same parties as the first, and the share of each partner was the same as in the first syndicate.

Witness then explained the routine of business done for the syndicate, and said that for each transaction that the Bank did for the syndicate commission was paid to the Bank.

AN INTERVAL INCIDENT.

On the Court re-assembling after lunch, the Advocate-General said it was his duty to bring to his Lordship's notice that immediately after the Court adjourned, the witness Dost-Mamomed went over to the office of the solicitors for the defence. He was a prosecution witness and the solicitors had no right to deal with a witness for the other side.

Mr. Kemp said he was instructed to say that his solicitors asked the witness not to come, but he followed them to their office.

The Advocate-General said that seemed to be the ruling passion of the witness. The prosecution were anxious that that sort of thing should not go on.

His Lordship then made a note of the matter.

The witness, Dost Mahomed Nur-Mahomed Jusoob, was then further cross-examined by Mr. Kemp. Referring to the budla accounts of the Bank, he said a loan of Rs. 97,000 was made to Nurmahomed. The local bills on which this amount was advanced on the 7th January, 1913, were bills drawn by Hassan brothers, and endorsed by Nurmahomed and Co. On that day credit for one lakh was given to Ahmed Nurmahomed and a debit for the same amount to Nurmahomed and Co.

His Lordship asked if Mr. Kemp wanted to show that all these people were partners in the transactions.

The Advocate-General said his case was that the account of Hassan Brothers, Ahmed and Nurmahomed were for Jaffer's purposes, and these speculations could not be distinguished from those of Jaffer. All were equally involved.

Mr. Kemp said the object of his cross-examination was to show that the credit given by the Bank was given not only to Hassan Brothers, but all those people. All these accounts were connected, and transfers were made indiscriminately.

The Advocate-General submitted the accounts were not indiscriminate, and it was not extraordinary to find those transfer entries.

His Lordship said that both sides appeared to work on the fact that there were transfer entries. The prosecution said that all these accounts were of one man, namely Jaffer. The defence said that these accounts were of four or five persons.

The cross-examination of the witness was not concluded when the Court rose for the day.

BOMBAY GOVERNMENT GAZETTE.

The following notification has been issued:—

In accordance with rule 3 of the Rules for the Discussion of the Annual Financial Statement of Government, published in Government Notification in the Legal Department No. 948, dated the 29th of December 1909, and in supersession of the rules published in Government Notification in the Legal Department No. 34, dated the 16th of January 1911, the Governor in Council is pleased:—

I. to declare that the Finance Committee shall consist of twelve members of whom six including the Finance Member, shall be nominated by the Governor and six shall be elected by the non-official members of the Legislative Council, and

II. to prescribe the following procedure for the election of the six members of the Finance Committee to be elected by the non-official members of the Legislative Council:—

1. Subject to the provisions of rule 13, such election shall be made at a meeting of the non-official members of the Legislative Council to be held on such date and at such time and place as may be appointed by the Governor-in-Council.

2. The Secretary shall provide each non-official member present with a voting paper, showing the names of the members of the Legislative Council with a space for recording a vote opposite the name of each member, and shall then withdraw.

3. The members present shall elect one of their number to be Chairman.

4. (a) The Chairman shall call upon the members present to nominate candidates.

(b, A candidate shall be deemed to be duly nominated if he is proposed by one member present and seconded by another member present.

(c) The Chairman shall enter the name of every candidate duly nominated together with the names of his proposer and seconder in a list which shall be read out and signed by him.

5. The number of candidates duly nominated does not exceed six, the candidates so nominated shall be declared to be elected, and the Chairman shall deliver to the Secretary the names of such candidates.

6. If the number of candidates duly nominated exceeds six, the Chairman shall invite the members present to record their votes.

7. (a) Each member may vote only six duly nominated candidates, and may not give more than one vote to any one such candidate.

(b) Each member shall record his vote by placing the mark plus opposite the name of each duly nominated candidate for whom he wishes to vote, and shall then sign the list.

8. When all the members present have recorded their votes, the Chairman shall inform the Secretary, who shall thereupon return to the meeting, and the Chairman shall deliver to the Secretary the list of candidates duly nominated together with the voting papers, and the Secretary shall count the votes.

9. (a) If the total number of votes recorded on a voting paper exceeds six, or if the voting paper is not signed, the voting paper shall be invalid.

(b) If the mark denoting any vote is so placed that it is doubtful to which candidate such vote is given, or if the mark is placed opposite the name of a member not duly nominated, the vote shall be invalid.

10. In the event of there being a number of candidates duly nominated having an equal number of votes so that the inclusion of all of them would bring the total to more then six, the Chairman shall by lot select from them such a number as will bring the total to six only.

11. Any point of order not referred to in these rules shall be decided by the Chairman forthwith and his decision shall be final.

12. The Secretary shall report the names of the candidates duly elected to the Chairman and to the Governor-in-Council.

13. If any elected member of the Finance Committee by death, resignation or otherwise ceases to be a member of the Finance Committee before the close of the financial year in which the Finance Committee has been appointed, and the Governor thinks it necessary that a fresh appointment shall be made, the vacancy shall be filled by election in such manner as the Governor may by special order prescribe.

SIX-CYLINDER

ROLLS-ROYCE

"THE FINEST CAR IN THE WORLD"

DAILY EXPRESS (London) 11/3/1914.

The Performances of the Rolls-Royce in THE GREAT AUSTRIAN ALPINE TRIALS OF 1913 AND 1914—admitted to be the most severe trials that motor cars have ever engaged in—fully uphold the reputation of "The World's Best Car."

1913 This trial was over a distance of 1,650 miles, no less than 19 Alpine Passes being included.

Four Rolls-Royce cars were entered, and each car made a non-stop run throughout.

The Rolls-Royce cars led throughout the contest. They were admittedly faster, especially on the hills, than any other competitor in the trial.

"The Performance of the Rolls-Royces was the most remarkable display of automobile efficiency that has ever yet been seen"—THE CAR.

1914 The distance was increased to 1,818 miles, and the test was even more severe than in 1913, as may be judged from press opinions.

"The Katschberg and the Turracherhöhe . . . These two hills are universally feared, and I shall not be at all surprised to find that they have knocked out the remnants of the non-stop brigade."—THE AUTO. 25/6/14.

"It is typical of the nature of the trial that the hardest climbs are picked out where and whenever they occur."—THE MOTOR. 23/6/1914.

17th June. "The Loibl proved a Waterloo to many . . . The Kreuzberg . . . again proved the undoing of several cars."

19th June. "Heavy rains throughout the night caused many doubts as to the condition of the roads . . . reported the road to the Jauffer Pass to be destroyed by a landslip."—THE MOTOR. 23/6/1914.

"In all my motoring experiences, extending over fifteen years, I have never known anything so arduous as the first day's run of the Austrian Alpine contest of 1914. It was terrific."

—Mr. C. L. FREESTON in THE AUTOCAR. 27/6/1914.

The only Rolls-Royce entered this year, in a field of 75 competitors, achieved a marvellous performance, as may be judged from the following report in "The Daily Chronicle" (London), June 24th, 1914.

VIENNA, June 23.

"The exciting and memorable Alpine trial of 1914 was concluded to-day with a run of 210 miles from Salzburg to the charming lakes of the Salzkammergut.

Leaving five minutes before the official start, I maintained the lead to a point eight miles out where the cars had to be timed over five kilometres in order to show that they had not been geared especially low for the purposes of the numerous mountain climbs over lofty passes.

After waiting until Mr. Radley came up and had been dispatched over the measured distance, I was granted special permission to follow him on my free lance Rolls-Royce. The speed which Mr. Radley was equired to attain pro rata to his cylinder capacity was an average of 62 miles an hour. This he accomplished with a liberal margin, while my free lance car had no difficulty in justifying its engine dimensions.

Neither of us was ever headed, and thus it arrived that two English-built cars were the first to enter Vienna.

Mr. Radley's Rolls-Royce has been first to finish every day throughout the trial, except when he went 59 miles out of his way on Monday week and came in third at Trieste. He did not have a single involuntary stop in 1,818 miles, and has achieved a marvellous performance. The qualities of his car have excited universal admiration.

In addition to the official route, he voluntarily covered 500 extra miles while the other competitors were resting at Innsbruck, his object being to run out and inspect the much-discussed Turracher Pass, with its terrifying gradients and hummocks."

DANGEROUS PEOPLE.

THE HABIT OF REPEATING THINGS ABOUT OTHERS.

What would the common conversational life of the world be, one wonders, if some tyrant with an ear like that of Dionysius were to overhear and punish all "little remarks" people, not necessarily malicious, make about other people behind their backs? Conversation, surely, would in such a case be robbed of its chief purpose, which, let us admit, is criticism—the criticism of our friends and enemies writes a correspondent in "The Times." Our friends we cannot criticize to their faces That is obvious. We are all so dreadfully sensitive nowadays that none of us endures the smallest adverse comment upon anything connected with his mental capacity or physical appearance; and if you know much of the world you know enough never to say "what you really think" when people ask you to tell them the truth about themselves. People who ask for the truth rarely get what they ask for, and never like it when they do. You tried the truth upon a few friends, thinking to benefit them and because they asked for it, long, long ago. They never forgave you. You lost their friendship. And you are never going to tell what you believe to be truth to anybody again unless you happen to lose your temper and the truth (as you think it) pour from you unexpectedly. You praise them, therefore, to their faces, always; and they like you and get on very well with you. Any "little remarks"—as unfavourable comments get to be called euphemistically—you reserve till they have turned their backs.

And thus it happened that, one day in a pleasant drawing-room, over your seventh cup of rather strong tea, you could not resist remarking that her way of dressing, though well meant (possibly), was, in its total result, reminiscent of nothing so much as Hampstead Heath on a Bank Holiday. "Yes! she has plenty of money, we all know that, but, my dear, she does not know how to spend it. Her hats—well, you know what they are; and although she goes to the best places, they all manage to make her look just the same—some how bunchy and flabby. Of course she has no figure. But much can be done to conceal that. Her walk, for instance—well, can she be said to walk at all? She waddles. No, certainly she has no taste—no taste in anything at all. You've seen the old master she's just bought? Well, that gives her away rather, what? But of course, as we all know, she's a dear thing and everybody loves her, and no doubt it isn't any of it the least little bit her fault."

CRITICISM OF OTHER PEOPLE.

And so it goes on, with relief to all concerned—that is, to all conversing—and with harm, one might have hoped, to none; for—need we say?—these things were nott "meant to be repeated." They were simply part of the talk of the day, which is never supposed to go any further than the day and the original speaker in it. With that supposition, that enormous postulate, you, the speaker, took your leave; much rested with talk and amused by criticism of other people. You go home and forget all about it.

You forget all about it, until, a day or two later, you happen to meet the bunchy lady with no figure, and "of course" no taste, at somebody else's house. What is this? You discern in a moment, with that swiftness of feminine intuition that no one can control or account for, that the bunchy lady is offended. Something is the matter with her. She is cold in her voice, aloof, remote; she gives two frigid fingers instead often, as is her habit. She does not embrace you or rush at you with "My dear, how are you? An age since we've met!" Instead of that she murmurs "How do you do?" and passes stiffly on. Very strange!

You scarcely noticed the total change in her manner, however, because you had too much to do that day. You noticed it with a shock, a little later, when you asked her, in an affectionate note, to come with her husband to dinner and received in reply, instead of her habitually effusive acceptance, this:—"I regret that my husband and I cannot accept your invitation for the 20th. We have another engagement for that evening."

Phew! Evidently something wrong. No good writing. She would not tell us. We must find out in some other way. You search your conscience and can find nothing; for the "little remarks" we make about other people are always immediately forgotten by ourselves. The other people remember them.

THE EXPLANATION.

And then, one day you happened to be talking to another friend, and you ask how it was that the bunchy lady seemed to be avoiding you, and treating you in a most eccentric manner, and that you were quite at a loss to account for it and knew not what it meant. And the friend, after much hesitation and timid retreats and sudden rushes into confidence beginning with "Well, do you know" and "I think I ought to tell you" finally consented to explain that in her presence at a neutral house, with several people listening, the poor dear harmless bunchy lady, whom you like so much, was told that you had said of her that she was an awful fright, that she had no figure, no taste, and that she waddled instead of walked." Intolerable repetition! You did not mean it. Or, at least, you did not mean it to be repeated. And now the poor bunchy lady knows it and hates you, and will never forgive you, but will be an enermy for life. It comes of people repeating things.

You wonder why they do it. What do they gain by it? They give pain and get no good. They offend you and they offended the bunchy lady. Horrid people! You determine never to see them again. Better to determine, however, never again, behind their backs, to "say anything" about others. It was your own fault. You were indiscreet. Indiscretions make enemies. One must, no doubt, have some enemies, but one gets an unusual and perhaps unnecessary number by talking about others. It always reaches them. They get to know, and they get to know without your reservations and attenuations and the extenuating circumstances you laid down originally in their favour. What they hear is the crude substance of the thing said, never the delicate and indulgent manner in which you said it. Don't say it therefore crudely or delicately at all. You learnt in youth never to criticize people to their faces. Learn now in middle-age not to criticize them behind their backs either. So you shall be immensely popular, socially, and if anybody asks why, the answer shall come, "Because she never says nasty things about people behind their backs."

THE UNSIMPLE LIFE.

ILLUSIONS AND DISILLUSIONS.

The cult of the Simple Life may not be so simple as it sounds, but it is still the summer hobby of many people who have nothing better to do, says a "Times" correspondent. And, of course, we all have our peculiar ideas of what it amounts to. For instance, one family of my acquaintance regularly disport themselves in a kind of shanty on the top of one of the highest hills of the North Downs seven miles from anywhere, their sole companions being a variety of dogs and a gramophone Then a certain well-known "society lady" has, one would think, a somewhat uncomfortable hobby of touring the countryside in a caravan. A well-known novelist has established himself in a windmill, where he lives in domestic bliss and writes his books in the grinding-loft. Such is the cult in some of its phases.

There are, of course, other and more commodious ways of leading the Simple Life, and one of them is to hire a houseboat. But this is a reprobate's existence. For what, after all, can people do with themselves who live in houseboats? "It depends where they are," you will say. Yes, but Londoners know of only one place which comfortably accommodates houseboats. That is the River Thames.

ILLUSIONS.

Upon the River Thames there dwells a very peculiar, particular, and exclusive type of Simple Lifer. He is a young man in spotless flannels and a Panama hat, who wears a Guards ribbon, and is never by any chance in the Guards. His prototype is a tall, slim young lady in a white frock and a very broad straw hat, who controls a punt with amazing skill, and is vulgarly known as the "river girl." And she is a curious product in her way. The shady reaches of the Thames know her by day; the footlights and the audiences at musical comedy know her by night. Of an evening you may see her going up in troops by the theatre train or in a luxurious motor-car.

But, after all, this houseboat business is a poor apology for the real thing. It is a pot pourri of luxury and flirtation, of American drinks and after-dinner concerts. It is exotic, Bohemian. The only elemental part of it is the early morning swim, which is supposed to cleanse the body and purify the soul. Let us turn to something nearer the truth. Poultry-farming, for instance, has an irresistible attraction for the female sex. That is the Simple Life—a cottage far from the madding crowd, picturesque yet homely within; without, divine communion with Nature. And new-laid eggs! Such an ideal appeals to that large class of woman who has slender resources and wishes to eke them out under agreeable conditions. A delightful contrast, she thinks, to the drudgery of a business career or of a secretary's harassed life, to organizing or to being organized. Yet even the Simple Life has its snares and pitfalls, its illusions and its disillusions. Not among buttercups and green fields can one escape the necessity of existence; nor will hens feed themselves nor will they produce eggs for the asking. So that kind of Simple Life requires capital, and it requires a certain education and it requires a certain temperament. For lack of any one of these many poor ladies have perforce returned whence they came, sadder and wiser women.

DISILLUSIONS.

Take the first. It is like a business. You must put down so many hundred pounds at the outset to start your poultry farm, buy your hens, and keep them going. You will expect a reasonable rate of interest on capital invested—that awful phrase must be faced—but to this end you will have to work hard and know your job. You will have to go into training for a certain length of time on somebody else's poultry farm, if only to assure yourself that the Simple Life will suit you. For how many have come out of the town and attempted that at which, had they known, they never could have succeeded! One cannot live on sentiment, any more than one can live on buttercups and green fields. Many people fall in love with the Simple Life and as quickly fall out of it. Such people are invariably disillusioned. The routine is dull; the hens are stupid; the gardener gets drunk. There is nobody a cat would talk to, except the clergyman. But now it is not merely a question of getting rid of the cottage, packing up, and going away. There are other links with the land, and it becomes a question of selling out at a loss. An expensive experiment, you will say. But the Simple Life is always an experiment, and in a topsy-turvy world even simplicity has its complications. So that it must not be ventured lightly; like every other undertaking, it requires a novitiate, an apprenticeship.

Yet to the woman who has, who knows, who can, many fields are open. There is fruit-farming, which though less amusing than poultry-keeping, is also less speculative; there is horticulture, decidedly more romantic than either. There is bee keeping and intensive culture, dairy work, and the varied pursuits of the small-holder. All of these are embraced, and successfully too, by the woman in tweeds, 'gun-boots," and felt hat. But realize, please, that her sort is neither romantic nor sentimental; her Simple Life is no mere cult. Often she is born to it, being a countrywoman. Else, it is her means of livelihood, her obvious vocation. And so she regards it.

ICO

When buying GHEE or BUTTER, you are not sure what you are paying for this age of adulteration and frauds. Those, however, who buy our

I. C. O. Refined Cottonseed Oil have the satisfaction of knowing that they get not only cent per cent value of their money but more.

I. C. O. Refined Cottonseed Oil is not a substitue for Ghee or Butter but a substance par excellence suitable for cooking, frying, rendering, baking and salad dressing.

I. C. O. Refined Cottonseed Oil is now used by leading families, hotels, restaurants and cafes. It is highly spoken of by Surgeon and Mrs. Wanless (Miraj); Mr. F. G. H. Anderson, I. C. S. (Collector of Surat). Dr. Patwardhan (Chief Medical Officer, Palanpur); Prof. Dhakmarwala (Vice Principal of Bombay Veterinary College) and Dr. Harold Mann.

JINTAN REFRESHING And AROMATIC

JUST TRY

[Made from the Prescription of two Professors of the Japanese Imperial Medical Academy.

Most Refreshing! Exquisitely Aromatic!!
Absolutely Pure! Wonderully Effective!!!

SPECIAL MERIT OF JINTAN.

As a digestive it is unequalled and will not disturb the functions of the mostdelicate stomach.

Its antiseptic properties render it very efficacious in warding off diseases and at the same time it imparts a delightful fragrance to the breath of the user.

By virtue of its aroma, it effectually masks the odour of Tobacco & Alcoholick Spirits.

It acts beneficially on the vocal cords and has found much favour with public speakers, actors, singers & those whose vocation necessitates a severe strain on the throat.

Would You Buy a MOTOR CAR without Ball Bearings?

Or a sewing machine? Or a watch without jewels?

The L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter Co.,

...worked out the principle of ball bearings in the L. C. Smith & Bros. typewriter. Every typebar is ball bearing; the carriage and capital shift travel on ball bearings and wherever friction would naturally develop, it is lessened to the vanishing point by ball bearings.

This means, in a typewriter, greater speed, closer adjustments and consequently, greater accuracy and neater typewritten work.

This is only one of the reasons why the L. C. Smith & Bros. typewriter is worth more money than any other typewriter ever made.

We can show you by actual demonstration how you can increase the efficiency of your stenographer and save yourself time and money.
